Will beach riot affect tourism?

By STEVE STONE

Sun News Editor

For the next few weeks, Virginia Beach businessmen will be watching sales carefully to see if Monday's violence is going to have a detrimental effect on business.

Many fear that the "Fifth of July" riot will scare away tourists -- and their dollars -- at a time when business is not all it was expected to have been in this bicentennial year.

Mayor Clarence A. Holland, only a week into his office, is optimistic. Speaking with the SUN Monday evening, Mayor Holland examined the effects of the riot on business as well as its causes and the police response:

"I am very happy no one was seriously injured. This is something that the city hopes would not occur, but it did, and police did a good job."

"It will depend more or less on the attitude that the city and businesses put forth (if this will hurt business...)

"I don't foresee this causing any big problem for the future," Mayor Holland said.

Others don't take the same confidence stand, though, especially those caught in the riot zone. Duane and Debra Ash own a building on Atlantic Avenue in the heart of the trouble area. They operate the Nantles Shell and Gift Shop, the front window of which was smashed and a small amount of merchandise stolen.

Package sales affected

None for the road!

On-premise sales of beer and wine can no longer be made in Virginia after midnight, and many Virginia Beach store managers as well as customers are not happy with that.

Changes in alcoholic beverage control laws and regulations of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission (formerly the A. B. C. Board) took effect last Thursday.

It was then that off-premise sales of beer and wine were pushed back from a 2 a.m. cut-off to midnight. However, sales are still permitted for

The streets were cleaned up by 7:30 a.m. Monday, but the acrid odor of tear gas still hung in the air and the shock effect of the early morning's Atlantic Avenue riot will linger long after the last broken store windows are repaired.

While participants and witnesses all spread their individual accounts of heroism or brutal attack, while sensationalists likened the unhappy events to war-torn Vietnam, and while the injured recuperated and the jailed considered their positions, the rest of Virginia Beach citizens tried to understand why and how.

To determine the cause of the July 5 ocean front riot, which by some estimates said 2,000 participants by others less than 1,000, was impossible.

There seems to be no single cause or incident that generated the Monday's melee.

As time passed the reports from different people came more and more into conflict.

In retrospect, it appears that participants, mostly in their late teens and early 20s, were on the streets... a little rowdy, a lot drunk.

Some started to overturn trash cans, and more people gathered, and the police patrols reported a growing crowd.

Exactly when it happened and who did it remains unknown, but someone threw the first bottle or brick at police and the situation became electric -- with dangerous possibilities.

When it was over, 78 were under arrest and facing charges ranging from disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace, to assault on a police officer and two cases of inciting to riot.

More than 30 people, including 11 policemen, were hospitalized, but all were released in a short time from Virginia Beach General Hospital.

At the height of the violence, when bar patrons began leaving the closing Atlantic Avenue establishments, some 80 local and state police with full riot gear were on the streets.

Police moved into the unruly crowd and attempted to disperse them, but as one police spokesman told the SUN later, "We would separate them, and they would regroup and come back at us."

At times there were rock-and-bottle-throwing youths on roofs. Four police vehicles were damaged. When the officer in charge declared an unlawful assembly and ordered the holiday revelers to move on, he was pelted with bricks, rocks and bottles, windows of his vehicle were smashed.

Other dramatic accounts would refer to "oceans of glass" and "pools of blood." Some, for whatever reason,

Seafood Feast Sept. 25

Neptune plans set

By LAUREN EDMUNDSON
Sun Feature Reporter

Now is the time to buy a ticket for the third annual Seafood Feast, Sept. 25.

Mayor Clarence A. Holland bought the first one at a kick-off press breakfast at the Mariner Hotel Tuesday.

The Seafood Feast, will be a highspot of the the month-long Neptune Festival, which officials term "Virginia Beach's Mardi Gras."

Chairman of the feast, Mike Fitzpatrick of the Mariner Hotel, promises this year it will be different.

By limiting the sales of tickets and selling them early, everyone should be assured of getting all he can eat. In previous feast, more seafood gourmets came than expected and food ran out.

Tickets chairman Mai O'Neal expects all tickets to be sold by Sept. 1.

Instead of thronging Atlantic Avenue as last year, local ticket-holders will be shuttled to Camp Pendleton, where they will enjoy seafood and other entertainments. There will be industrial displays, games, Heyoka Indian dances and fireworks.

Fitzpatrick, having attended the Eastern Shore Seafood Festival, is sold on how the ladies of Chincoteague fix oysters, clams and sweet potatoes.

Beginning at 6 a.m. the Saturday of the feast, 56 Chincoteague ladies will be based to Camp Pendleton where they will begin preparing their famed fritters.

"It'll be food prepared hot on the spot, and nothing will be frozen," Fitzpatrick added.

The menu also includes raw, fried and steamed clams; raw, fried and roasted oysters; hot dogs and hamburgers; cole slaw and house puppies.

President Bob Berry added that the entire month-long Neptune Festival not only gives Tidewater residents a chance to dine on choice seafood, but is a vehicle for Virginia Beach residents to express themselves and become involved."

All work for the month-long spectacle is done by an estimated 8,000 volunteers. For example, Berry mentioned that the Toastmaster and Toastmistress Clubs in the city are now doing much basic promotional work by giving talks to Virginia Beach clubs.

Tidewater Community College will provide the most important part of the work force for the seafood festival.

The college this year offers a special three-credit course, coordinated with the festival, during which, among other things, "students learn how to feed crowds of 15,000," Fitzpatrick said.

Tickets are $10 for adults, $7.50 for children (6-12). They are now on sale at most Virginia Beach bank branches, Wickes Furniture Store, BeachTravel, Special Services at the Naval Air Station and the Neptune Festival office in the Chamber of Commerce building at Pembroke.

on-premise consumption until 2 a.m. year-round.

Initially, managers of stores which had sold off-premise until the later hour have not been able to accurately measure the exact effect of the new law.

Herb Maples who manages the Seven Eleven store at 521 Newton Rd. told the SUN that 80 per cent of his store's business in beer and wine came because it was then that business was off as much as 35 per cent now that that three hour period has been reduced to a single hour. "My sales have decreased drastically," he said.

Not only are sales on beer and wine reduced, but associated sales in cigarettes and snack food are also being affected.

The change came on the eve of the Fourth of July, a naturally-busy period with numerous late-running parties. Several beach area store managers say they may lose a great deal of income since tourists and visitors as well as residents may not have been aware of the change and did not find out by the Fourth.

One manager even broached the possibility of "some hanky-panky going on in the A. B. C. and the hotel and restaurant associations."

David Hendrix president of the Virginia Beach Innkeepers Association said that he didn't think the changes

Inn-mates play ball with inmates

By BLAIR THURMAN
Sun Sports Editor

Once they close the gates, you are IN there, until they decide to let you out.

Fortunately for the Harbour Inn softball team, they had been assured they would be freed soon after they were through playing, unlike their opponents, the inmates of the Petersburg Federal Reformatory.

Coached by Tom Beck, the Virginia Beachers who led the Piledrivers to the World Championship in 1972, the Harbour Inn squad made the journey to Petersburg last Sunday, in order to play a couple games with the inmates.

Beck said, "Ever since I won the World Championship, teams I coach get invited to play lots of different places." Different isn't the word for it. Cameras were not allowed on the grounds, and the players were carefully counted as they were admitted through the gates. The first gate that is. Then there is the Sally Port, a sort of no-man's land, or de-militarized zone that makes it doubly difficult to escape.

The players were advised to stick closely together, and did not object too strenuously. The softball field was on the other side of yet another gate, and the softballers walked through single-file.

It was not difficult to distinguish the Harbour Inn team from the inmates, as the visitors wore their red and white uniforms and the inmate team wore blue T-shirts. The inmate spectators wore khaki pants, for the most part, and no shirts. It was easy to see that weight-lifting is a major past-time. Their builds have to be seen to be believed.

The Harbour Inn team is undefeated this season in their league, but the stifling heat took its toll on them. Usually a high-scoring team, they were held quite effectively, and they trailed the inmates 4-1 going into the final inning.

The inmates, who had expected to be slaughtered (figuratively speaking, of course) played good defensive ball, and took advantage of shoddy Harbour Inn fielding to score their runs.

But in the final frame, Harbour Inn came to life. Big Jim Murphy started the rally with a single. Consecutive hits by "Fightin'" Phil Faucher, Dave Beck, the coach's son and Jeff Long, the "bean doctor", tied the score. Mike Edelheit strode to the plate and drove an intentional walk. A few more hits and Harbour Inn had a 7-4 lead.

The defense held, and the players sighed with relief. But the relief was short-lived.

Soon after that, the second game began. The Harbour Inn players showed signs of exhaustion, as they displayed the offensive talents of a Brookie troop. With their bats effectively silenced, and their feet dragging in the field, Harbour Inn lost to the inmates 10-1.

The inmates were friendly throughout the day, and even criticised the officiating when Harbour Inn got aump call.

"Man, that's where I want to be," he replied.

When it was all over, the team was the recipient of some more prison hospitality, as they were guests for dinner. The food wasn't the greatest, but the fruit drink was wet and cold, and very gratefully accepted. Tom Beck alone drank 12 glasses with his meal.

Glad that they could leave, the team gathered up their belongings and headed through the double gates once again. The guard atop the tower said goodbye, and they left for home.

Aquastars at Beach

By BLAIR THURMAN
Sun Sports Editor

What sport could be more appropriate at the beach than swimming?

The answer of course, is that there is none, and the Cavalier Aquastars are taking advantage of their setting to prove what they can do.

Their show, put on at the Cavalier Hotel every Monday night at seven, incorporates diving, water ballet and music into a pleasing half-hour of fun.

Run by the appropriately named Faith Beach, of Virginia Beach, the show uses youngsters as well as professionals, although all the talent is local.

Mrs. Beach herself used to perform with the Aquarians, a group that did synchronized swimming along the East Coast. "The image we try to project," said Mrs. Beach, "is just fun for half an hour. This isn't like AAU competition or anything like that."

Among other things, Mrs. Beach performs an expressive dance around the pool. Also in the show is clown diving by the kids, a dance on the theme of what to do at the beach by Holly Riggs and Wendy Smith, and several other aquatic numbers, the last of which is a salute to America's Bicentennial.

Lifeguards Dick Ward and Steve Freeman lend their muscle to the show as well.

If you happen to be walking along the boardwalk, stop by the Cavalier pool and watch the group perform. It's a lot of fun.

Mayor Clarence A. Holland sworn into office

Virginia Beach's new mayor plans to share some of his more ceremonial duties with other members of Council.

In his acceptance speech following his election last Tuesday, new Mayor Clarence A. Holland said, "I know I will not keep up the pace Curtis (Mayor J. Curtis Payne) was able to maintain" and that he would call on other Council members for assistance from time to time.

Payne, representing Princess Anne

Borough in Council, lost the mayoral election to Holland, a physician representing the Bayside Borough, by a vote of seven to four last Thursday. He seldom missed a function where the presence of the mayor was desired.

Virginia Beach also has a new vice mayor: Patrick L. Standing was elected over incumbent George R. Ferrell by a vote of six to five.

Payne, who had sought re-election said he was "not bitter about it. My term meant a lot to me. I enjoyed working with the Council. I certainly don't have any axes to grind."

He commended the administration staff and said he appreciated the press, which has "treated the Council fairly." Payne was obviously upset, however, by the outcome of the election.

Holland maintained that "Curtis is my friend. Because of this, it was difficult to seek the office. My desire was solely a personal one."

He said that differences that he was backed by any political faction was not true. "It's my own man."

Seated in the packed Council Chambers, were Holland's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Holland, his wife and three daughters.

John V. Fenster, clerk of the Circuit Court, presided over the session and administered the oath of office to newly-elected Councilman R. L. "Bud" Riggs and Councilwoman Meyer.

E. Oberndorf. They replace Robert H. Callis and Charles W. Gardner who did not seek a re-election.

Voting for Holland were Councilmen John A. Baum, John R. Griffin, Riggs, Standing and Floyd E. Waterfield Jr., (who made the nomination). Councilwoman Oberndorf and Holland.

Voting for Payne were Councilman Robert B. Cromwell Jr., J. Henry McCoy Jr. (who made the nomination), Vice Mayor Ferrell and Payne.

Voting for Standing were Baum, Cromwell, Holland, Riggs, Standing and Waterfield.

Voting for Ferrell were Griffin, Ferrell, Payne, McCoy and Oberndorf.

Resolutions of appreciation were awarded to former Councilmen Callis and Gardner, and the new council appointed the city manager, city attorney, city clerk, high constable, tax assessor and their assistants or deputies.

Eagle Scouts help in D.C.

The Eagle Scout Bicentennial Celebration--which continues through August 25--is a unique cultural and educational experience for the Nation's bicentennial. It includes demonstrations in the Scouting/USA Center located on the Mall near the Festival of American Folklife and the Lincoln Memorial, as well as service with the National Capital Parks as hosts and information aides at national monuments and historical buildings.

Four Eagle Scouts from the Tidewater Council, Norfolk, Va., are in Washington, D.C., to take part in the Eagle Scout Bicentennial Celebration.

Selection was made on the basis of extracurricular activities, school record, community participation (including religious life), speaking ability, and knowledge of the United States. Each participant must have earned the rank of Eagle Scout, the highest advancement award presented by the Boy Scouts of America.

The Eagle scouts from the Tidewater Council are Dwayne Braxton, 17, grandson of Mrs. Moseella Braxton, Norfolk; a member of St. John African Methodist Episcopal Troop 76; Brian M. Karch, 19, son of Mr. & Mrs. Paul Karch, Virginia Beach, a member of Haygood United Methodist Troop 383; Monte Knutson, 17, son of Mr. & Mrs. Ray Knutson, Ft. Monroe, a member of Latter Day Saints Church Troop 358; and David G. Schaffer, III, 17, son of Mr. & Mrs. David G. Schaffer, Virginia Beach, a member of Thalia United Methodist Troop 372.

of Virginia Beach, Dwayne Braxton of Norfolk, Monte Knutson of Ft. Monroe and Brian Karch of Virginia Beach.

Bill Hall's 'dream come true'

Billy Hall's dream has come true at 33 even though he figures he's only half way there.

Hall is the owner and congenial operator of Nick's at Sandbridge, the unique restaurant facing the beach and featuring a gourmet menu of seafood and even steak and chicken dishes.

It's well worth the drive and will satisfy even the most discriminating appetite, ranging from the succulent seafood platter at $7.95 to the chicken or beef plates for as little as $3.95.

"I've been here since May 1 of 1975," said the congenial Hall. "The guy I bought it from operated it as a sort of diner, and I had it for 15 years."

"Prior to opening a restaurant business I was a builder. My mother has been in the business all of her life and discouraged me from going into it--just too much work involved."

"The place was a dump. We've done everything ourselves. We've just begun."

It's been a great start for Nick's. From virtually him--the staff has grown to its present 17.

"We've done better than expected," Hall added. "We're open all winter, and last winter we held our own. Local people support us."

Seafood is the main fare at Nick's. It's fresh. Plus they cut their own steaks, more than anything taking pride in their food over anything else. Nothing is pre-prepared. It's all made when ordered. It's first class all the way for Nick's at Sandbridge.

Dinner is the fare there, served from noon to 11 Saturday and Sunday, and from 5 to 11 the other five days. Nick's seats 85 and prices are moderate, stopping at the high of $8.95. As to the bar operation, "We don't want to be a bar. We want to concentrate on food," Hall said.

"Nick's is the only restaurant right here," he added. "But there's another one just down the road. The competition is great."

Motif of course is the sea: ship's portraits, shells, netting, lanterns, portholes, even a wheel--these all added by the energetic and likeable Hall, and he also is responsible for the dramatic physical transformation.

Many Virginia Beach and area clubs use Nick's as a regular meeting place, and what with summer business booming, Billy Hall is looking for expansion. He envisions a second floor one day, and spotlights onto the beach and ocean.

As for now, Nick's is packed weekends, and Wednesday nights. Hall personally gets the seafood from North Carolina docks, bringing back and using 500 pounds of shrimp "even" week. He gets his soft crabs, oysters and clams from the Eastern Shore.

Nick's doesn't take reservations, but a call there will provide you with an up-to-date report on how busy it is and when to come etc. Miller's and Heineken's beer are on tap, and the striking bar features mixed drinks, topped by several exotic offerings. The biggest rush comes between 8 and 9 p.m.

Nick's has come a long way and is worth the run to Sandbridge.

Billy Hall loves fishing -- when he can. "I don't have time symmons," he lamented.

But everyone else is delighted. The busier they keep him, the better Nick's will be. And that's the way they want it.

Mars featured at planetarium

The Virginia Beach City Public Schools Planetarium's program for July will be the Planet Mars: Viking Update. This program includes a historical perspective on the planet Mars, and relates information gained from the Mariner missions including photos of the surface of Mars, revealing many of its interesting topographical features.

Known facts about the planet will be discussed, along with the possibilities of life, what kind, and in what areas of the planet the life might be found.

Of special interest will be the Viking update information from NASA's Langley research center in Hampton, which will be relaying information from the Jet Propulsion Laboratories (JPL) in California. This will give daily news on Viking I and Viking II as they approach and orbit Mars.

Planetarium hours are Sunday 7 to 8 p.m. on the 11th; Tuesday 7 to 8 p.m. on the 13th; Wednesday 7 to 8 p.m. on the 14th.

The planetarium seats 120 and is accessible from the 44 toll road by taking the Lynnhaven Exit (Exit 5) to the Lynnhaven Parkway and turning right at the first street--South Lynnhaven Road--to Plaza Junior High School, where the Planetarium is located.

Right turn on red not legal until first of 1977

By STEVE STONE
Sun News Editor

Tidewater residents, take note:

The law permitting right turns on red lights at traffic intersections in Virginia does not take effect until January 1, 1977.

Concerned that drivers may think the new law became operational July 1, state and local law enforcement agencies are advising that the general right-turn rule is not in effect and won't be for another six months.

Some officials have feared that drivers would start turning on the red signal at intersections where such a turn is not yet allowed. Locally, however, police have not had any problems.

Sgt. F.R. Scarborough of the Virginia Beach Police Department's Traffic Division said local police have "not had any noticeable problems."

"We might experience a problem after July First," Scarborough noted. Numerous other new laws and traffic regulations were to have gone into effect the first of the month and Virginia Beach police are concerned that drivers might assume that the right turn rule was among them.

Currently many intersections in the Virginia Beach area permit the turn on the red light, but these intersections are marked with signs advising that the turn is permissible after a full stop. Once the law takes effect next year only intersections where the turns will NOT be allowed will be marked. Signs saying "No Turn on Red" will be posted at those intersections.

The new law was passed by the 1976 General Assembly after research showed that allowing the right turns at "safe" intersections would save drivers substantial time and money. The research also indicated a decrease in the number of accidents at right turn on red intersections.

The time lag between passage of the law and its implementation was to help provide time for determination of intersections not safe for the right turn on red so that signs can be posted.

Statutes detail proper disposal of yard waste

Leaves, Grass, Shrubbery Tummings and Limbs, Sec. 17-8 Of the city ordinance states, that leaves, grass or shrubbery trimmings may be placed with burnable materials in a tight metal container or double container with cover, or may be placed in the following receptacles. Bushel baskets, plastic or polyethylene bags, not to exceed 20 gallons capacity or 50 pounds in total weight.

All limbs, hedge trimmings and branches, shall be cut in lengths not to exceed six feet, and shall be placed on the street line in a neat and orderly manner for collection. They shall also be in reasonable amounts as will not impair the efficiency of the routine collection of garbage, refuse and waste.

In placing dirt, broken cement, bricks and other solid matter on the street for collection by the city, they must be in metal or plastic containers not to exceed 50 pounds in total weight. We are asking that you use a little consideration for the men collecting these items.

A simple rule to follow is if you can lift the can by yourself and carry it to the streetline, we can collect it. If you place the empty can on the streetline, then kill it to the top, more likely it will not be collected and left for you to carry back off of the street.

Animal waste and small dead animals.

Sec. 17-10-2, Of the city ordinance states, that all animal waste & small dead animals are to be placed in Plastic bags, sealed at the top and placed in Metal or Plastic cans for removal by the Sanitation (Refuse Department). No Animal Waste or Litter is to be dumped Loose in the containers.

Tazewell coords pageant

Mrs. E. Bradford Tazewell, Jr., of 1335 North Bay Shore Drive, Virginia Beach was coordinator of the successful Interfaith Bicentennial pageant that was held in Norfolk's Scope on the Fourth of July.

The program included over 250 slides; nearly 300 choir members, a dozen actors, six dancers and a thirty piece orchestra.

Titled, "A Vigil for Liberty" the program was sponsored by the Norfolk-Virginia Beach Interfaith Bicentennial Commission.

A highlight of the pageant was the dedication of the 15-foot monument designed by Norfolk sculptors Victor Peckitt and William Wagner. The Declaration of Independence was read by Congressman G. William Whitehurst at the dedication. Rabbi Philip Pincus of Virginia Beach participated in the unveiling with the most Reverend Walter Sullivan, Roman Catholic Bishop for the Diocese of Virginia.

America is experiencing a wave of nostalgia for the good old days. Many of us can remember the days when life was simpler, when families were close, and when most social life centered around church and home. Today families are on the move - they are without roots. Family ties are weakened and church attendance is often neglected. Traditional values and relationships are lost. The result is an increase in broken homes, in problems of adolescence, and a loss of respect for the older generation.

We can never return to the good old days, for society has become far more complex, but we can renew some of its values. Respect for older people in our society, a return to regular attendance at church, and a renewed dedication to teaching sound values to our young people can help solve some of the problems that confront us today.

Whitehurst conducts Tidewater poll

New refuse schedule in effect for all Virginia Beach

Effective on Monday the City of Virginia Beach instituted a new refuse collection schedule affecting the entire city, and as would be expected, there has been some confusion.

Many citizens have been calling the city's information "Hot Line" trying to find out when they should be putting their refuse on the streets for pick-up.

According to the new schedule, all subdivisions south of Virginia Beach Boulevard from the Norfolk line to London Bridge and all subdivisions south of Laskin Road from London Bridge to Atlantic Avenue should plan on service every Monday and Tuesday. Exceptions to this schedule are Pinewood Gardens, Lynnhaven Village, Eureka Park, Lynnhaven Park, Magic Hollow, Scarborough Square, Cardinal Estates, Lamplight Manor, West Ocean Gardens, Gatewood Park, Chelmsford Square and Nottingham Estates.

These locations, excepted from the Monday-Thursday schedule and the roads connecting them, will be serviced on Tuesdays and Fridays.

All subdivisions north of Virginia Beach Boulevard from the Norfolk line to London Bridge, then all subdivisions north of Laskin Road from London Bridge to Atlantic Avenue will be serviced on Tuesday and Friday.

All non-garbage items, such as appliances, tree limbs, etc., not collected on the regular collection day will be collected the following Wednesday.

Collection starts at 7 a.m.

Collection starts at 7 a.m. so trash should be on the curb before then.

Because of continued confusion the city is preparing to undertake a television advertising campaign to inform the general public of the new schedules.

For more exact information contact the Refuse Bureau at 427-4201 or the Hot Line at 427-4111.

City officials seek ways to prevent disturbances

By LEE CAHILL
Sun Political Writer

The July 5 riot in Virginia Beach has left city officials, council members and private citizens groping for ways to prevent a similar incident in the future.

At the formal and informal sessions of the council Monday afternoon, cause and effect theories were discussed and remedies for the future were offered, but there was less than full agreement on what should be done.

City Manager George L. Hanbury suggested creating a special tactical force that would be fully equipped with dedicated cars to go to any area, in case of disaster or civil disturbance, to restore order and take control, something like a SWAT team.

He also maintained that the main deterrent for repeat riots was the record of 93 arrests during the July 5 incident to show that the police will take action to insure peace in the city.

Hanbury suggested that business establishments in the area of the riot (in the area of the riot (in the 21st Street and Atlantic Avenue section) should be made to make certain that all places of business in the city comply with the building officials and code administrators occupancy loading factor.

Hanbury also wants more frequent ABC inspections. He said of the 14 inspectors assigned to the entire Tide-water Area only one is assigned to Virginia Beach.

Councilwoman Myers Oberndorf, participating in her first council regular meeting since her election, didn't agree. She said she is "not convinced" that arresting people will help much. She suggested looking into ways other resorts have handled the problem. The councilwoman noted she called Ocean City, Md., which had a riot three years ago and hasn't had one since.

The city, she reported, had made its municipal center available for entertainment for young people on a daily basis. That way, officials reasoned, they would have something to do besides loiter on the streets.

Mrs. Oberndorf also believes that the employment of junior and senior college students on the police force for the summer might help. She said these temporary policemen would not make arrests but might be able to help the young people and act as a positive influence in steering them away from trouble.

Councilman John A. Baum questioned whether the people would be willing to

Kathy Hutchinson takes call

Hot Line answers most any question

By STEVE STONE
Sun News Editor

They call to find out where Frank Sinatra is appearing, to find out how much wet and dry dirt to use in their flower beds, and lately, about when their garbage will be collected.

The callers are finding that there is almost no question that can not be answered by the ladies at the City Hot Line operated out of the Public Information Office in the Administration Building at the Municipal Center.

Because the service has been so well received and used the city is extending the hours of operation for the three-year-old program. The old hours of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday have been extended from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. in the week and the office is now also open on weekends 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

When the first phone calls were answered in April 1973 there was only one full-time operator, Margaret Conroy, who will mark her twentieth anniversary as a Virginia Beach municipal employee next year, and she is entering her fourth year with the Hot Line.

Since calls range from information about trash collection to requests for telephone numbers of various officials, the girls on the phones explained their job. "We look up ordinances, tell people what departments can help them when we can't and when we can't answer a question we take the caller's name and after we find an answer, call them back." Much of their time is spent on research and over the years they have built what is probably the most complete list of important and helpful phone numbers in Tidewater and the Peninsula, 851-9101.

They can help 95% of the people who call and stress that one of their primary purposes is to keep citizens and visitors from getting that "run-around" feeling.

To some people calls may seem silly, even ridiculous, but the girls who take the calls have learned that if it is a serious issue, then it is completely serious, thus they always treat each call accordingly.

For their information, the girls will extend every possible service, and that includes calling their mothers sometimes, and usually they find an answer. "Sometimes we might make as many as 25 calls ourselves to find an answer."

The Hot Line also takes reports on burnt out street and traffic lights, holes in the roads, clogged storm drains and the like. When such a report is received they make out a work order which is sent to the highway or appropriate department and with four or five days a copy is returned detailing the work done to alleviate the reported problem.

Calls now run an average of about 200-300 a day, and with more hours available to call in that number should continue to increase. To the private citizen the Hot Line can be one of the more direct and accessible services for their tax dollars.

Of course, there are times when someone might call just to cause trouble such as an obscene phone call. One girl got such a call but because of noise in the office she didn't understand the caller the first time he spoke. She politely asked, "If he could repeat himself... he did not... and she hung the phone up in her ear."

For information of most any nature, don't be afraid or feel silly, give them a call, that is what they are there for, and who knows, maybe you'll find out you aren't using enough dirt in your pickle.

Beware unethical salesmen

"However as in every industry," Martak continued, "there is a fringe element of the unethical the incompetent and the downright dishonest."

The majority of termite and pest control companies are run by honest people who have pledged their support to the BBB Standards for the industry, added the BBB Manager.

To avoid problems, the BBB suggests you keep the following in mind?

-Don't panic if you learn or suspect that termites may be attacking your house. Your house will not collapse because termites are present.

-Never permit yourself to be rushed into signing any contract or into purchasing termite control. Termite damage usually develops slowly. You always have ample time to check up on the company or get another estimate before you proceed.

-Purchase your service from a reliable firm. Buy termite control services with the same care that is necessary in the purchase of any other service for your property.

-Investigate before you invest. See if you are dealing with a reliable firm with an established place of business. Obtain and check references of their work, preferably job done six months or more earlier. Check with your Better Business Bureau, Chamber of Commerce and your local County Agricultural Agent.

-Report misleading sales pitches to the Tidewater Better Business Bureau, P.O. Box 3211, Norfolk, Virginia 23514, or dial 627-5461 (Norfolk) or toll-free from the Peninsula, 851-9101.

"I was surprised at the response. A lot of people called us, even though it was a holiday," Mrs. Helmold said.

End of the Brown Shoe

Officers and men at command Naval Air Force, U.S. Atlantic Fleet (COMM-AIRLANT) Headquarters gathered to bid a fond farewell to a traditionally distinctive symbol that has been synonymous with the naval aviation community since its beginning.

The brown shoes, symbol of naval aviation for over 85 decades, were "laid to rest" beneath the lawn of COMM-AIRLANT Headquarters.

With a small gathering in attendance, Capt. M. G. McCanna, Chief of Staff for COMM-AIRLANT, bid a final farewell to the brown shoes:

"You have served us well, brown shoes, but now you must take your place among those cherished treasures, those beloved things that are gone, but not forgotten. We are enshrining you for posterity. You have served the naval aviation community on home and foreign shores and afloat, helping us to stand tall and

Area and state crime stats

Statistics compiled by the Virginia Uniform Crime Reporting Program showed an overall decrease of 3.2 per cent in serious Virginia crimes through April when compared with the same period in 1975.

While there was an increase of 8.6 per cent in April murders and non-negligent manslaughter and larceny-theft remained just about the same, the other five categories showed substantial reductions to give a total decrease of 3.2 per cent for the month.

The value of property stolen did increase by just over one hundred thousand dollars to a total of $4,246,107.00 as compared with the same period one year ago.

Below are the statistics for this past April as well as for 1976 through the end of April for Virginia Beach and Chesapeake. The number to the left of the slash in the local statistic, to the right overall state statistic:

Thomas Clancy earns 4.0 at TCC

Thomas M. Clancy, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Clancy, Sr., of Virginia Beach attained a 4.0 average as one of 12 Norfolk Naval Shipyard employees on the honor roll at Tidewater Community College's Fredericksburg Campus.

Clancy is the second Mechanical Group student in as many quarters to make such scholastic achievement. During the previous quarter, Mrs. Laura J. Priest, a first year apprentice machinist in Shop 31, topped a list of 34 apprentices by earning an "A" average.

Clancy, a third year apprentice, started as a helper in 1973. He attended Deep Creek High School, but stopped short of graduation. He thought it over, and things have changed. Clancy has taken and passed the GED test. During this last quarter, he took English, industrial safety, mathematics, and physics. From all indications and that "A" average, he is making great strides in his college work, and moving on toward graduation.

No-debate policy being questioned

Bob Washington, Democratic candidate for Congress, today questioned Republican incumbent G. William Whitehurst's repeated refusal to attend any joint forums to discuss the issues.

"I cannot help but wonder if Congressman Whitehurst's long-term policy against responding to such calls for debate is not merely a long-term policy of avoiding any open discussion of the issues," Washington said.

"I must admit, though, I'm not entirely surprised by my opponent's refusal, but I am greatly disappointed by the fact that he wishes to deny the people of Virginia Beach and Norfolk the opportunity to question his positions on the issues," Washington added.

"In calling my request for debate an obvious political ploy to get him to help my campaign, Congressman Whitehurst overlooked the fact that several invitations were received inviting us to discuss the issues before I ever challenged him myself," observed Washington.

"These invitations should indicate to my opponent the desire of the people of Virginia Beach and Norfolk to hear the answers to their questions. I have and will continue to accept these invitations and strongly urge Congressman Whitehurst to reconsider his no-debate policy," Washington commented.

Wilshire wins first in language contest

Gary Allen Wilshire, a freshman at Old Dominion University, was awarded first prize for an entry, college-level beginning Russian, in the annual 1976 state-wide Russian Language Essay Contest, conducted by the Virginia Chapter, American Association of Teachers of Slavic and East European Languages.

Gary, a Russian major who is enrolled in first year Russian at Old Dominion University, entered an original poem, titled, "Syrat" (Syrat translated into English means They sleep).

Prof. John Fabey, Gary's first year Russian teacher at Old Dominion University, voiced his praise for the achievement:

"The beginning college level competition includes second year college Russian language students, not only from Virginia institutions, but often from out-of-state colleges. Gary's accomplishment is particularly praiseworthy since he is a freshman taking first-year college Russian."

Wilshire studied Russia for one year at First Colonial High before enrolling last fall at Old Dominion.

He resides with his parents at 917 Duke of Suffolk Drive (Wellington Woods), Virginia Beach.

Gary's winning poem will be published later this year in the Virginia Chapter's quarterly publication, Dlyan.

Chamber of Commerce sets design program

The Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce has established a design awards program for the purpose of recognizing existing significant contributions to the appearance of Virginia Beach, promoting future projects that will contribute to community appearance and stimulating a broader awareness of the environment by the general public.

Any project in the city of Virginia Beach worthy of recognition as being well designed and aesthetically pleasing, which is generally visible for consideration for an award.

Small scale or low budget get projects which make a distant contribution to community appearance as just as eligible as large scale, expensive projects.

The five categories for awards are:

(1) Graphics Design Award: An award for the design of creative signs and pictures used for purposes of informing or directing the public.

(2) Architectural Design Award: An award for the design of a building or residence that achieves both a visually pleasing appearance and fits its surroundings.

(3) Landscape Design Award: An award for the design of an arrangement of land for human use and enjoyment that could involve the placement of structures, vehicular and pedestrian ways, and plantings.

Award: An award for the design of an arrangement of land for human use and enjoyment that could involve the placement of structures, vehicular and pedestrian ways, and plantings.

(4) Art Award: An award for the design of skill and creative imagination especially in the production of aesthetic objects such as paintings and sculptures.

(5) Environmental Design Award: An award for the design which effectively combines man made and natural elements.

Projects will be judged by the design awards committee on the basis of the particular design solution offered by the project and its contribution to the community appearance. Projects will not be judged on competition with other entries.

Honor award certificates and commendation award certificates will be presented only to projects judged as making an outstanding contribution to community appearance. No awards will be made should the design awards committee decide that the entries are not worthy of recognition. Awards in the form of suitable certificates, will be presented to the designer, the owner or other person or group responsible for the project. Winners will be notified privately following the judging.

A formal announcement of the award winners will be made by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce prior to its annual meeting. Certificates will be presented to winners at the annual meeting of the Beach Chamber.

Entries may be submitted in writing or by phone by the designer, owner or other person or group responsible for the project. Individual citizens are encouraged to make recommendations for projects they feel should be considered for an award.

Please call or write your recommendations to: William M. Walsh, Jr., 303 Birchwood Park Drive, Virginia Beach, 23452, telephone: 465-5777.

Include with your recommendations the projects name, and address, also the name, address, and phone number of the person making the submission. If possible please identify the owner or other person or group responsible for the project.

Midget League Braves cop crown

The Virginia Beach Recreation Department recently held its annual Midget League Beach City Championship Game, and the contestants were a pair of 14-game winners during the regular season.

The only difference in their records was that the Kempsville Royals managed to tie a game, and the Kempsville Braves lost one.

The big game

A crowd of about 100 was on hand to watch the championship game at Kalamazoo High School.

The Braves drew first blood in the bottom of the second inning. With one out and a runner on third base, Jeff Beecham clouted a home run into left centerfield. The ball carried just over the glove of the left fielder, and Beecham scored easily, giving the Braves a two-ap lead.

One inning later, Scott Matheson sparked another Braves rally with a solo home run. After the round-tripper, Brian Sloop singled, stole second, and advanced to third on an overthrow to centerfield. Next, G. G. Payne ripped a single, scoring Sloop. Payne stole second and later scored, boosting the Braves' lead to 5-0, after three.

The Royals broke their scoring drought in the fourth inning when Jeff Woolard singled and went to second on an overthrow.

Scott Johnson then singled, but Woolard was thrown out at third. Anthony Sherwood then drove in Johnson from second, winding up on third himself.

Greg Holvik drew a base-on-balls and stole second to no avail, as the Royals were through scoring that inning.

The Braves broke the game open in the fifth inning, when Blair Ferguson singled, stole second, and scored on Scott Matheson's base hit. Matheson advanced to second on the throw home. A pick-off play was attempted, but the ball rolled out into centerfield, and Ferguson scored.

After Brian Sloop singled and stole second, G. G. Payne hit the ball to the first base side. Instead of forcing Payne, the firstbaseman threw home and got Sloop caught in a run-down.

A gallant comeback

The Royals tried a valiant comeback in the sixth inning, when Jeff Woolard and Scott Johnson scoring. It was not enough, however, and the Braves won the championship.

Shannon Cox, of the Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department said, "It was a real exciting game, and all the boys did real well."

Beach raceway keeping busy

Rain forced postponement of featured events over the holiday weekend at the Virginia Beach Raceway, but on Monday night, it was competition as usual.

After being rained out Saturday, track operator Hank Hanks chose to run the hill schedule Monday rather than cancel, and the program went late into the holiday night.

Jerry Carson of Portsmouth, driving a 1968 Nova, celebrated the Bicentennial by winning the Modified competition with an elapsed time of 9.47 seconds.

Billy Tisdale of Hampton took top Formula class honors with a 10.05 time in his 1967 Camaro.

Bracket One Winner was Arnold Tucker of Virginia Beach in 1969 Ford, clocked at 13.82 seconds.

Mike Wasson of Norfolk piloted the Bracket Two prize in his 1974 Dodge van with a 14.91 time.

The motorcycle racing was led by David Thiesen of Creeds, with a 14.75 time on his 1972 Honda.

A specially scheduled foot race was won by 20-year-old Travis Halstead of Creeds.

In racing this past Saturday night, Jerry Carson of Portsmouth notched his second triumph in as many weeks.

Carson, who had earned two honors in the Modified class a week earlier, this time led the Formula field with an elapsed time of 9.52 seconds in his 1969 Nova.

The Modified winner was Wes Johnson of Virginia Beach, clocked at 10.21 seconds in a 1971 Nova.

Bracket One competition was won by Andrew Furtach of Virginia Beach in a 1969 Ford with a time of 10.96 seconds.

Steve Ward of Virginia Beach took Bracket Two honors in a 1973 Nova clocked at 13.82 seconds.

Motorcycle winner was Mel Ulrey of Virginia Beach, riding a Honda 750 to a time of 12.14 seconds.

The regular weekly program of drag racing, with competition in all classes, is set for this Saturday at Virginia Beach Raceway.

Two-tenths of a mile drag strip is located five miles south of Pungo, near Creeds.

Gates will open for spectators and competitors at 8 p.m., with time trials to start at 5 and racing at 8.

Enjoy Virginia Beach!

Not a car, but a boat

By BLAID THURMAN
Sun Sports Editor

Bob Diffenderfer of Virginia Beach is a law enforcement officer. His beat? The waterways of Tidewater.

Diffenderfer is an inspector for the Virginia Marine Resources Commission, and spends much of his time patrolling the local tributaries in his boat, powered by a 650 Mercury engine.

Riding around with Diffenderfer is a learning experience, in ecology, in boating, and in law enforcement.

The inspector likes his job, but is often caught in a dilemma. He is trapped between the feeling of beauty and freedom he enjoys while cruising in his boat, but also has the burdens of responsibility on his shoulders. "There are not many jobs you can enjoy the beauty of nature like this one," he said, "and then you have to mar it by giving someone a ticket."

Since the Keppone snafu, Diffenderfer has spent a good deal of his time trying to prevent local people from fishing and crabbing in the canals and tributaries. "I hate to write a ticket, but what can you do? I get them to throw their fish back, unless it's commercial fishing. But those who fish to eat, then I feel bad."

Diffenderfer often puts his boat in the Chesapeake Public Boat Ramp in Great Bridge, and feels that a more adequate dock could be built. "It's had when you have to take your boats off just to get into your boat," lamented Diffenderfer. As his boat cuts through the water, Diffenderfer is a virtual dictionary on what is going on.

"If you look over there," he says, "you'll see those trees in the water where the land has been eroded. Lots of that is from the wake of those motor boats."

Continuing along, he starts talking about the marsh grass. "We are trying to preserve the marsh grass, because it is important to the life system of many animals. If people build bulkheads to protect their property, it helps destroy this life system."

And of course fishing comes up a lot. "We allow catch and release fishing, but it is difficult to regulate all of it. I hate to issue summons."

When Diffenderfer spots a potential violator, he whips out his binoculars and sizes up the situation. If it appears that something is wrong, he moves in. He is always friendly. "Excuse me, but crabbing isn't allowed out here."

The offenders always go into a "who me?" routine. "You mean there is no crabbing anywhere around here?"

Diffenderfer, a paragon of patience replies. "No, the closest place is Willoughby Bay, but you can only catch the females there."

Diffenderfer keeps feet dry on dock

He has them empty out their cooler of crabs and bids them good-bye.

He knows about many of the boats that have been left to die in the low water. As he talks about the various boats, a tinge of nostalgia enters his voice, and the boats take on the qualities of a lost friend. Occasionally, they are a lost friend.

He pointed out one boat and said, "That boat is the Lagonia. It used to be a two-masted bug-eye and then an oyster buy boat, and then a friend of mine and I bought it, just for pleasure." He pauses, "Yeah, she sure had beautiful lines on her."

Snapping out of his reverie, he points out some old minnows that have been in mothballs for years, and are sold to fishermen as trailers.

His observations never cease. "From what I can see, the main industries around here are fertilizer and cement."

Unfortunately, people see Diffenderfer in uniform and take the defensive, when all he wants to do is be friendly. But while alone in his boat, taking in the scenes he knows by heart, he is free, and appreciates it like few do.

Martin gets scholarship

Strikeout artist Robert Martin, who fanned 82 batters in 50 innings this spring for Kempsville High School in Virginia Beach, Va., has signed a grand-in-aid to play for Old Dominion University.

Martin, a 6-5 185-pound right-hander, posted a 4-4 record this year for the "Chiefs" with an earned run average of 3.12. Kempsville won the Eastern District title for the second year in a row with a 14-7 record, but the defending state champions were beaten in the regionals.

"Robert has good potential and a real good arm," said coach Bud Metheny, who has had 25 winning seasons in 28 years of coaching baseball at ODU. "He'll be a valuable asset to our pitching staff."

Robert, now playing in three summer leagues in American Legion, Babe Ruth, and Little League, has played a current pitching record of 7-0. In 45 innings Martin has 58 strikeouts. He is 5-0 for Legion co-leaders Post 204 and has been picked for a Legion all-star team.

"Robert works hard on his game and has a fine attitude," said Kempsville coach Vic "Punchy" Martin.

"I chose Old Dominion because I like the program and I'm looking forward to playing for coach Metheny and coach Ray White," said Martin.

Oceana wives bring good cheer

For more than seven years, the wives of NAS Oceana-based squadron personnel here at the Beach have been visiting wards at Portsmouth Naval Hospital to cheer patients.

The Oceana Officers Wives' Club, in conjunction with the All Wives Board, organizes monthly visits by officer and enlisted wives to the hospital. Each third Wednesday of the month these ladies display their talents by bringing fun and home-made snacks to add a personal warmth to each patient's stay.

A recent visit was made by the Officers' Wives of Fleet

Composite Squadron Two (VC-2). With a little "hocus-pocus," 13-year-old Jeffrey Koke made scarves change color, balls disappear and performed other feats of magic to entertain the pediatric ward.

Even VC-2's skipper, Cdr. Larry Lowe, along with Lcdr. Murray Cheston, also of VC-2, helped by playing guitars and singing for the male orthopedic patients.

The Red Cross Volunteers at the hospital said that over the years Oceana wives have been most loyal and supportive in an endeavor to bring entertainment, conversation, and refreshments.

Virginia Beach school employees participating in "most successful" workshop

Ed workshop gets A+

According to a pair of "outside evaluators," the Virginia Beach public school division has just completed one of the most successful employee workshops ever conducted for educators in the City.

In the opinion of Dr. John Holmworth and Dr. Ross Vanbinder, the Administrative binder, the Administrative Leadership Workshop concluded, recently was "very comprehensive, check-full of variety, and filled with humanness." The pair, brought in from Pittsburgh and Rochester, New York, respectively, to take an objective look at the conference, rated the week-long session at Plana Junior High School highly.

Planned and conducted by local school officials, the Administrative Leadership Conference was designed to provide the City's 55 public school principals with information and guidance on a variety of topics related to their jobs. Both local and state speakers participated in the workshop dealing with such subjects as humanistic management, employee relations, instructional leadership, and techniques of communication.

Using the idea "Managing As a Team Member" as its theme, the five-day program included lectures, group discussions, and small group work sessions.

As a result of the success of the conference, plans call for a number of additional workshops on different topics to be conducted for school administrators in the future.

$100 million for control

Navy not polluter!

Members of York Chapter of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation and the Virginia Beach Chapter of the National Audubon Society were told at recent meeting that by 1980 the U.S. Navy will have expended over $100 million on pollution abatement facilities and equipment in our area.

LT John P. Collins, CEC, USN, Environmental Officer at the Atlantic Division, Naval Facilities Engineering Command outlined what the Navy is doing to prevent pollution, mentioning best from adverse effects of contamination by its ships, aircraft and shore facilities.

Collins stated that where economically feasible, the Navy is connecting sewage collection systems to regional treatment plants. For example, in October 1975 the Naval Air Station Oceans, sewage treatment plant was closed and a connection was made to the Hampton Roads Sanitation District.

A similar connection project is underway at the Fleet Combat Direction Center, Atlantic, Dam Neck. Upon completion of this connection the Navy will no longer operate sewage treatment plants in Norfolk, and Virginia Beach.

Navy ships are presently being converted at the rate of 100 per year to an on-board collection, holding, and transfer system. This will permit ships to retain sewage while transiting the harbor areas and discharge sewage into the pier sewer system while in port.

The Navy is also preparing to use waste to reclaim the energy value from generated solid waste. This is accomplished by use of solid waste as a fuel to generate steam at the Navy's Salvage Fuel Boiler Facility here.

This Is Your LIFE

Have you ever wondered how people felt as their life was featured on the TV show This Is Your Life? As important people and events were recalled, would you feel that you had succeeded or failed in life? Do not judge on the basis of material prosperity or fame for these are not the most important measures. Judge on your importance in the lives of others. Have you been a loyal friend, a faithful husband or wife, a loving parent, a dutiful son or daughter?

If you do not feel that you can answer yes to most of these questions, perhaps you need to re-examine yourself. None of us is perfect. We all fail at times, to live up to our principles, but we can aspire to do better. The Bible teaches that "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesseth" (Luke 12:13). Our life is successful if we have been true to those we love and to God. This is your life--make the most of it.

Council discusses Kempsville water

By LEE CAHILL
Sun Correspondent

The pressing need for increased pressure in the Kempsville area motivated Council to override objections of residents and a developer against placing a 150 foot high tower in a residential neighborhood.

The towers will be placed in the vicinity of Providence and Kempsville Roads on an undeveloped site presently zoned "residential" in part of the Stratford Chase subdivision abutting Kempsville Road.

Attorney Grover Wright, representing the owner of the property, said that the water tower should be placed on areas which are already zoned commercial, not in a residential community.

City Council Monday afternoon awarded a contract to low bidder Crowley Contracting Co., Inc. for $734,000 to construct towers both at the Kempsville Road site and on the Columbus Street Loop, diagonally behind the Wickes Furniture Store. The engineer's estimate had been $345,500.

Council awarded four other contracts:

To Brown Steel Contractors, Inc. $54,000 for the Shore Drive Pump station and standpipe.

To W. B. Meredith, II, Inc. $1,019,000 for foundations and grading for that project.

To John H. Malton Contracting Co., Inc. $30,692.50 for sanitary sewerage facilities Lake Shores-Jackson Road and Horseshoe Bend. (The engineer's estimate was $32,900.)

To W. B. Meredith, II, Inc. $58,850 for another part of the above project. (The engineer's estimate was $110,000.)

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that the developer had agreed to dedicate six acres of the recreation reservation requirements for Stratford Chase on the highway. The city will use the acreage for a park to soften the impact of the water tower, Hanbury said.

Council denies zoning petition; seven zoning requests considered

Upholding the recommendation of the Planning Commission, City Council Thursday afternoon denied the petition of Roy L. Dehart to change zoning from Agricultural 1 to Business 2 on 8.2 acres at the northeast corner of Salem and Landstown Roads.

Council first voted against a motion to approve the request by a vote of six to four, with Councilmen George R. Ferrall (who lives on Salem Road), John R. Griffin, J. Henry McCoy, Jr. and Floyd E. Waterfield, Jr., voting for approval.

On a 7-3 vote to deny the petition, negative votes were cast by Ferrall, Griffin and McCoy.

Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing, voting for denial, said the city would have the same problems as in the 50's and 60's and 70's of having a landowner and developer waging the city.

Ferrall voted for approval because the land "will be commercial one of these days."

In other zoning matters, the council:

-Denied the application of Alfred M. Mason for a change in zoning from Residential to Community Business District on 2.26 acres located on the north side of Bonney Road, west of South Gun Road, Kempsville. This time the vote was unanimous against the Planning Commission's recommendation to approve the request.

Council also denied an application by Mason for a conditional use permit for a bulk storage yard contingent on winning the rezoning. Richard Naujoks, representing the Thalia Civic League, which opposed the rezoning, said the land would end up as "another junkyard."

Councilwoman Oberndorf

$8,500 approved for 'Tomorrow'

City council lost one vote on second reading for an appropriation of $8,500 for the Virginia Beach Tomorrow program.

Councilwoman Meyera E. Oberndorf, who was not on council when the appropriation was approved unanimously on first reading, said that she didn't think the Tomorrow steering committee needed the additional funds to wind up its program. She said, however, that she recognized the need for the program.

The committee, headed by Derek Dunn-Rankin expects to use the additional funds for a final two-day planning session in September to arrive at a consensus. The session will take place over a week-end away from Virginia Beach so that the committee will not be disturbed.

Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing, although approving the appropriation, said he wanted an accounting of the expenditures and didn't think that $8,500 would have to be spent.

Sunshine special a happy success

Something nice happens on the way to the beach every day.

It's a little bus which pickup people who want to go to the beach from College Park eastward. And surfers have a neat place to have their surfboards on the outside.

The Sunshine Special, as the bus is known, is apparently a success, according to Councilman J. Henry McCoy Jr. McCoy seems to think it's one of the nicest things that has happened in Virginia Beach.

The bus averages 181 riders a day, which means that the city will consider making it a permanent thing for the summer.

The service was inaugurated this summer.

McCoy, on the other hand, is not too happy with violations of motorists on feeder lanes. People are coming out of the feeder lanes on red lights instead of waiting for the green.

He thinks the city should publicize, through an ad if necessary, the right way and the wrong way to use the lanes.

Miss Janet Miller engaged

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Miller of 3445 E. Bonner Drive in Norfolk have announced the engagement of their daughter Janet L. Miller to William C. Litchfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer W. Litchfield of 952 Lindley Drive in Virginia Beach.

Miss Miller is a 1974 graduate of Washington High School and she is a member of the Virginia Beach Pool Dance Club. She is currently employed in the Pathology Department of Norfolk General Hospital.

Mr. Litchfield is a 1973 graduate of Norfolk Christian High School and also graduated from Tidewater Community College in 1975. He is currently attending Old Dominion University. He is a member of the Virginia Beach Folk Dance Club and is employed at Colonial Stores, Inc., of Laskin Road in Virginia Beach.

Council mulls administrative revamp

The Virginia Beach City Council has put off until Aug. 9 action on proposed changes in the organizational structure of the city to give the lawmakers time to study the matter further.

At a meeting Monday night, councilors much the changes will cost and whether they will be as beneficial to the city as City Manager George L. Hanbury thinks they will be.

Hanbury told council at an informal session Monday that the reorganization is designed to be "more responsive" to Virginia Beach's citizens by offering central legislative and managerial power for orderly development and financial control, but decentralized services for responsiveness.

He also said he contemplates no changes in this year's budget as a result of the reorganization, but would ask city administration to study the matter for next year's budget. Even then, he said, the additional cost in salaries would be less than $10,000 or $15,000 or $20,000 since people within the city organization who would be receiving are already receiving high salaries.

The single exception, he said, is the salary of a new employee to be head a proposed Division of Convention Promotion under the Department of Economic Development. This salary should range around $30,000, he said, with the remaining staff made up of transfers from other departments.

"If you're going to have a $16 million (Arts and Conference) Center, Hanbury said, you're going to have to sell it to the audience."

The first overhaul of the city's administrative machinery since 1970, the proposed reorganization is described by Hanbury as a way to meet the need of a city which has grown from 172,000 in 1970 to 230,000 now and still growing at the rate of 1,000 a month.

"We're just becoming a larger city, and a larger city will need more competent people at higher salaries," Hanbury said.

Changes include two elevations to department - the Management Services Agency to the Data Processing Department and the Inspections Division of the Community Services Department to the Permits and Inspections Department.

Also included are name changes for two departments - the Water Conservation Services to Department of Agriculture and the Community Services Department to the Department of Public Works - to better explain the functions of the departments.

The new Convention Promotion Division would be responsible primarily for the sales and services of conventions in the city.

Divisions under the Department of Permits and Inspections would include minimum housing, consumer protection, inspections and zoning. A division of traffic also would be included with the divisions of engineering, highways and sanitation falls the Department of Public Works.

Also sought in the reorganization is the establishment of the titles "Assistant to the city manager/grants," and "Development Review Coordinator," or ombudsman for subdivisions and site plans in the Planning Department.

Under the proposed arrangement, Hanbury said, an assistant city manager would be directly responsible to him. To the suggestion that Hanbury might need an assistant city manager to relieve him of some of the supervision of the departments, Hanbury said that he wanted to make sure that department heads could get their ideas to him without going through an intermediary.

Commenting on Hanbury's job, said the manager, "It takes four hours to four days to get you on the telephone now."

"What are we going to do then? It seems as though you're centralizing more (than decentralizing). You can't do it by yourself."

"I know you feel that I'm not responsive to you directly," Hanbury said, "maybe we can go into executive session."

J. Curtis Payne expressed his belief that Hanbury needs "a free hand to run the city," but that if he doesn't run it, he is answerable to the people.

Hanbury told the council they could "leave it (the structure) as it is. I can work with it."

Clay, other execs named

There is such a thing as doing a job too well.

Tell Kevin B. "Sam" Clay, III, he has done so well that city commissioners were hesitant about replacing him, although he wanted to be replaced. And although he would be replaced by someone as well qualified that Commissioners Meyers overruled a motion to keep him out of politics in describing her.

Summing up Council's feelings Monday afternoon, Commissioner George R. Farrell said, "Editors Sam, we didn't -- tell the library, every Monday, as part of his overorganization. I suggest you want Clay to work full-time as an assistant to the city manager in charge of public information and human resources. He is currently assistant to the city manager in charge of public information and library director.

Under the reorganization, Clay will be out of the library department which will be taken over by his assistant Martha J. Simms.

Council members could visualize the library system crumbling into what it was "before Sam," but relented to give Clay the chance he wanted to become more immersed in the city manager's job.

A native of Portsmouth, Mrs. Simms has a B.A. in English from Mary Baldwin College and an M.S. in library science from the University of North Carolina, as well as a master's in public administration from Old Dominion University.

Coming from the Richmond Public Library, she joined the Virginia Beach

Public Library in 1971 and became assistant director in 1974.

Clay joined the City in 1970 as director of the public library and edited public information in 1972. He has a B.A. in English from Randolph-Macon College, and an M.S. in library science from the University of North Carolina.

He is active in a number of civic organizations and has published articles in several library publications.

He has reluctantly appointed director of the community departments involved in the reorganization.

Boys Nation delegate

Virgili newest lawmaker

William Mark Virgili, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Virgili of Shore Drive in Virginia Beach, left for Washington, D.C. yesterday where he will be one of three students representing the Commonwealth at the American Legion Boys and Girls Nation.

The program, sponsored annually by the Legion, is larger this year than any previous. Almost 300 students from every state in the union and D. C. will participate in the 16 day session which teaches the operation of the federal government.

It is a choice group of young Americans that participates each year. Selection is not easy and so one actually applies for the privilege. It starts with the individual Girls and Boys States that are held in the early summer in each state.

The state Legions sponsor the programs which study local, county and state government. Maryland, with 16 Legionnaires, is the state with 62 other students, at Lynchburg College June 13-19. He was originally selected for that honor by a faculty/administrative group at Frank W. Cox High School as one of ten school representatives.

At Boys State Virgili was nominated for the office of mayor in the Federalist Party. The boys and girls state/nation use two fictional parties in teaching the political process/Federalist and Nationalist.

While in Washington Virgili will be part of the largest, and most expensive, Boys and Girls Nations ever.

The American Legion feels that the program is very valuable to those articulate and able high school students who will be seniors in September.

Because of the significance of this Biennial year the normal one week program has been expanded to almost three weeks. The delegates will stay at American University in Washington, D.C. for most of the time, with on-the-road. They will receive lectures and departmental briefings at the Departments of State, Defense and Justice. They will visit the Pentagon, the U.S. Naval Academy, the Smithsonian and historical sights in Philadelphia and Valley Forge. They will go to the Supreme Court.

Two highlights will be a visit to the White House and a probable greeting from President Ford. On a later date an afternoon will be spent at the Capitol where the students will meet their Senators and Representatives in Congress.

It is estimated that over the American Legion and its Auxiliary are adding 20,000 boys and 18,000 girls to its total of over one million who have received training in governmental operation.

Virgili will have a chance to seek office at the national program. A president and vice president will be nominated and elected in a model of the regular election process. Numerous office appointments will be made by the newly elected 'chief executive.'

Each delegate is designated as a Senator or Representative. Mark is a Representative, and they will hold a regular meeting of their respective bodies to conduct business including the writing and consideration of various bills.

All-in-all, it promises to be an unforgettable three weeks for 'representative Virgili' and his fellow members of 'Congress', but also a time to learn a great deal.

Coming from the Richmond Public Library, she joined the Virginia Beach

Beach educator rep

The Virginia Association of Elementary School Principals has elected James M. Ogleby, principal of Alanton Elementary School in Virginia Beach, as the state representative to the National Association of Elementary School Principals.

Each state is allowed only one delegate to the national organization and Ogleby has been selected to serve as the Virginia representative for a three-year period.

The Virginia and National Association of Elementary School Principals are professional organizations interested in the improvement of elementary school education and school administration and the professional development of elementary school educators.

Ogleby, who became the principal of Alanton Elementary School in 1974, has been a teacher and administrator with the Virginia Beach Public Schools for 16 years, including five years as principal of Woodstock Elementary School.

As its elected delegate, Ogleby will represent the Virginia association in all matters coming before the National Association of Elementary School Principals.

Fed workers get pay hike

Pay raises are in order for all federal blue-collar employees under the Federal Wage System, and Hampton News and Portsmouth wage areas, as a result of a new wage schedule issued by the Department of Defense (DOD). Increases average 5.94 cents per cent or 31 cents for non-

The schedule, established under the Federal Wage System, applies to approximately 8,000 Norfolk Naval Shipyard employees and 12,000 others in the areas who are engaged in various trade and labor occupations. Shipyards will see the increases in their Aug. 5 checks.

The pay rates in the new schedule are based on a survey of rates paid by private industry in the area, as well as prevailing rates paid by the Aircraft Industry in Philadelphia, as required by Public Law 90-560, the "Monroe Amendment."

Increases average 5.94 per cent or 31 cents for non-supervisory employees; 5.93 per cent or 34 cents for leaders; and 5.40 per cent or 42 cents for supervisors. For printing and lithographic employees, the increases average 5.73 per cent or 27 cents.

When applied to specific occupations such as a first-step WG-10 machinist, electrician, pipefitter, sheet metal mechanic, welder, or any other mechanic, the new rates represent a 34 cents boost from $5.41 to $5.76 per hour. Famous battle of the Virginia Capes depicted in C & P model at Ft. Story

A scale model depicting the famous Battle of the Virginia Capes was presented to the city and the Bicentennial Commission last week at the Overlook at Ft. Story where it will be housed.

The gift was sponsored by the Community Relations Team of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company. The model, built by Earl Dashiel of Churchland over a period of several months, depicts the joining of battle between the British and French fleets in 1781.

The model, which even has small lights on the sides of the ships imitating canon fire, shows what it must have looked like almost 200 years ago.

The Community Relations team is a voluntary effort by employees of C&P Telephone to assist in various community projects. The model is a contribution of the Bicentennial Division of that team, headed by Robert Evans. The battle off the Capes was interesting, and most important in its impact.

On August 30, 1781, Admiral deGrasse Washington and Rochambeau, with the combined French-American armies in the vicinity of New York City. At this time word was received that Admiral deGrasse was bringing a naval force superior to the British to the Chesapeake Bay. Immediately the combined forces moved south.

At Yorktown Cornwallis was establishing a British camp and fortifying both banks of the York River. His primary mission was to cut communications between the colonies.

Washington well knew the vital importance which sea power could exert on the operations of both armies.

As a British Admiral, Rodney, and Rodney, learned of the move of deGrasse to the American Coast, he detached a 14 ship squadron under Rear Admiral Hood to reinforce the New York group. Rodney had misjudged the size of the fleet deGrasse had brought to America. ca. Thus Hood sailed with insufficient numbers of ships.

When Hood reached the Virginia Capes on August 15 nothing looked amiss and he continued on to New York. Since his squadron passed under the command of Rear Admiral of the Red Sir Thomas Graves.

On August 30, 1781, a combined fleet of 22 ships entered Chesapeake Bay and anchored in Lynnhaven Roads. At this point the French-American armies had reached Philadelphia, while Lafayette guarded the southern flank of Cornwallis to prevent a retreat to North Carolina.

A French squadron under Admiral deBarres with 11 ships of the line cleared Newport on August 25 for the Chesapeake with 25 heavy siege guns on board.

Learning of their departure Admiral Graves fleet left New York on September 1 hoping to catch deBarres enroute to the Chesapeake.

Sitting within sight Admiral Graves moved off the Virginia Capes on September 5, observing the presence of a fleet inside the bay anchored from Cape Henry to Middle Ground Shoal. Scanning the forest of tall masts with his long glass, he immediately knew that this was deGrasse with the French Main Body.

This was a dramatic moment at this crisis in world history. Both sides were equally surprised.

Graves held the tactical hand for his ships were in open water, being blown down the wind.

Graves could do little the French ships as each put to sea if he shot.

It was fortunate for American Independence that Graves was neither a tactician nor one to seize the initiative. He therefore signalled to form "line of battle ahead" and waited for the French to sortie.

By 2 o'clock the 16 French ships, including the 104 gun Ville de Paris, with gun Ville de Paris, with deGrasse's flag were well out of the bay on an easterly course.

Graves still held the "weather gage" bringing the English line parallel to the French in the same heading. As the lead ships drew opposite one another, Graves signalled "bear down and engage the enemy." The cannonade opened about four o'clock.

The British commander hoisted conflicting signals which confused the division commanders and captains. Thus, the action never became general. Only the lead ships engaged closest in centers partially at long range and the rear not at all.

The fight broke off at darkness. As both fleets drifted with little wind to the southward, each took stock of damages and casualties. Several hundred were killed or wounded on each side. No ship had been taken or sunk. The British ship "Terrible" was cut up severely and ordered destroyed by burning.

The following day the fleets lay becalmed within sight of each other. For two more days neither commander showed any disposition to renew the engagement.

DeGrasse took the initiative and returned to the Chesapeake on September 11 ahead of the British. As the British ships approached the Capes, they saw both deGrasse's and deBarres ships anchored inside. deBarres had gained the bay while both fleets were to the southward. The welcome reinforcement made deGrasse's superiority very pronounced.

Graves again approached the Capes, and not liking what he saw, called a council of war among his senior British officers.

They decided it was impractical to give any effectual succor to General Cornwallis, so they resolved to return to New York. Thus, Cornwallis was lost.

As a naval engagement, the action off the Virginia Capes was a mere brush. Yet its result has been called one of the most decisive battles in world history - fought for the price of a continent.

When the last red-coated British trooper had staked his arms, and the final drum boats of a melancholy march,

"The World Turned Upside Down," had died on the crisp air. Washington gratefully wrote deGrasse to thank him "for the glorious event for which she is indebted to you." The general responded with a masterful understatement: "I consider myself infinitely happy to have been of some service to the United States."

Council denies three requests

Upholding the recommendation of the Planning Commission, City Council Thursday afternoon denied the petition of Roy L. DeJarl to change zoning from Agricultural I to Business 2 on 3.2 acres at the northeast corner of Salem and Landstown Roads.

Council first voted against a motion to approve the request by a vote of 8 to 4, with Councilmen George R. Ferrell (who lives on Salem Road), John R. Griffin, J. Henry McCoy, Jr. and Floyd E. Waterford, Jr., voting for approval.

On a 7-3 vote to deny the petition, negative votes were cast by Ferrell, Griffin and McCoy.

Vice-Mayor Patrick L. Standing, voting for denial, said the city would have the same problems as in the 50's and early 70's of having the landowner and developer voting for approval.

Vice-Mayor Patrick L. Standing, voting for denial, said the city would have the same problems as in the 50's and early 70's of having the landowner and developer voting for approval.

Ferrell voted for approval because the land "will be commercial one of these days."

In other zoning matters, the council:

—Denied the application of Alfred M. Mason for a change in zoning from Residential to Community Business District on 2.26 acres located on the north side of Bonney Road, west of South Gum Road, Kempsville. This time the vote was unanimous against the Planning Commission's recommendation to approve the request.

Council also denied an application by Mason for a commercial use permit for a bulk storage yard contingent on winning the rezoning. Richard Naujoks, representing the Thalia Civic League, which opposed the rezoning, said the land would end up as "another junkyard."

Graves again approached the Capes, and not liking what he saw, called a council of war among his senior British officers.

FOOD Facts & Fancies

Tomato lovers might like to know that tomatoes got their name from the Italian word "pomo d'oro" because the first tomatoes being yellow were called by the Italians "pomo d'oro," "golden apples." To the French that sounded like pomme d'amour or "apple of lust."

The group is limited to persons who will meet for seven evenings during a 5 1/2 week period. Interested seven evenings during a 2 1/2 week period. Interested smokers may contact the Lung Association, 855-3059, for additional information and advance Registration Forms.

Council defers permit application

Virginia Beach City Council deferred until Aug. 23 an application for a conditional use permit for a self-service mobile service station which would also have a convenience food sales mart.

The Planning Commission had recommended approval of the permit on condition the mart be deleted.

The applicant, Murphy Oil Corporation, rather than argue with the commissioners, decided to wait until council could act on an ordinance pertaining to combination use involving self-service stations and food sales. The ordinance is now being considered by the Planning Commission.

The facility would be located on a .68 acre parcel at the northwest intersection of Diamond Springs Road and Bayview Road.

In other matters, council:

Approved the application of the Bayview Development Corporation for a change of zoning from agricultural to residential on approximately 8.45 acres on the east side of Oceans Boulevard, north of London Bridge Road. The zoning allows five 20,000 sq. ft. lots.

Approved the petition for a change of zoning from apartment to residential district on approximately 5.4 acres located at the southwest intersection of Stonehouse Road and Riverhead Road in the Lakes Subdivision of Princess Anne Borough. The zoning allows 19 single family residences with a minimum lot size of 7,500 sq. ft. compared to 65 apartment units under the previous zoning.

Approved a conditional use permit to a man named Bowes for an automatic service station on a 31,915 sq. ft. parcel at the southeast intersection of Princess Anne Road and Mill Landing Road, Pungo. Cecil Simpkins, who leases the property, plans to construct an additional service bay at the station. Councilman Robert B. Crispell, and Mayors Pro Tem A. H. Hines and Councilwoman Meyra O'Connor dissented because an exception was made in granting the deletion of two recommended dedications.

Granted a conditional use permit for two duplexes on an 11,000 sq. ft. parcel located on the northeast corner of Cypress Avenue and Lakes Drive. The application was made by William H. and Rachel S. Pallette.

Granted a conditional use permit to V. Alfred and Maribelle M. Eberidge for a conditional use permit to operate a temporary parking lot on a 15,000 sq. ft. parcel located on the east side of Atlantic Avenue, south of 24th Street.

Deferred for two weeks action on a petition by Timothy H. Langston, Margaret D. Langston, Ocean Church of Christ, Julius Perl and Pavel Perl for the closure of a 30-foot unnamed street located in Ocean Gardens, Lynnhaven.

Purposes of the deferrals was to allow the applicant to acquire a 10-foot dedication of right-of-way along Lots N, O, P, Q, R and S. Closure of a 20-foot section instead of a 30-foot section, in addition to a 10-foot dedication request, made by the Planning Commission, and review would provide the City with a standard 40-foot right-of-way known as Garcia Drive.

Local firm handles regional insurance

Recent approval by the Virginia Insurance Department of the insurance plans offered by Volunteer Firemen's Insurance Services, Inc. has led to the appointment of Pembroke Realty & Insurance Agency, Inc., Virginia Beach, as a regional representative, according to an announcement made by Arthur J. Glafelter, president of V.F.I.S.

Volunteer Firemen's Insurance Services, Inc. (V.F.I.S.) specializes in insurance packages for fire companies, ambulance corps, emergency squads, fire police and other civic organizations.

"We were most pleased with the appointment of the Pembroke firm," Glafelter said. "The Pembroke group enjoys an excellent reputation throughout the state in writing all forms of insurance. Their people understand the unique needs of these civic organizations and can do much to bring our various plans to their attention."

Kirk Hammaker will be the administrator for the new plans.

"Our work in the sale of group plans has often brought us in contact with civic organizations," Hammaker explained. "Prior to our association with V.F.I.S., our coverage recommendations for these groups consisted mainly of standard commercial coverages. The V.F.I.S. line, we found, was complete in every detail and offered special coverages that were not readily available through any other insurance organization."

Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing agreed that Virginia Beach is changing, and the people who handle city are going to have to change the way they operate. The council is only interested in gaining some answers concerning the proposals, he explained.

Councilman Robert B. Cromwell, Jr., a member of a council-appointed Management Study Committee assigned to study the city's future, also agreed that Hanbury decentralized for better economy and service while his predecessor Roger Scott centralized for better economy and service.

Cromwell maintained that different men would handle the problem in different ways and that it is a matter of "attitude."

Most of the citizens complaints which precipitated the formation of the Committee were generated by some irate answers to questions. It was mostly a matter of attitude, he said.

"I hope you have recognized some attitude change," Hanbury said.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf said the council "is not on a witch hunt," but is definitely concerned about good service.

"None of us want a bureaucracy," Councilman John A. Baum remarked, but "I don't think the changes are so sweeping."

The four thousand military personnel and civilian employees of the Dam Neck Naval Installation, together with their families teamed up to celebrate the bicentennial on Saturday with fun and games and over a ton of pit-cooked barbecue.

Mr. Ed Barker, manager of the Chief Petty Officers' Club for the past eight years, stayed up all Friday night and Saturday morning supervising a crew of volunteer barbecue cooks. They turned five whole pigs spit-roasted over above-ground cinder block enclosures and cooked 3,000 pounds of hams and shoulders in portable barbecue ovens trailer-ed in for the occasion. And if you didn't like barbecue, no problem; Ed and Lieutenant Commander Carl Humphrey, the base Supply Officer, laid on 8,000 hot dogs and 700 dozen (that's 9,000) ears of corn.

Entertainment for the crowd feature; the Miss Show, a beauty pageant at the White House, and free rides for the children to include a train ride, space train, and airplane. Five thousand balloons and sun visors were handed out by members of the Navy Wives' Club.

Dam Neck Bicentennial Day activities are subsidized by a base raffle in which the first prize is a nineteen-inch color television, second and third place winners each get a ten speed bicycle, and a 12-gauge shot gun for the fourth prize.

Profits from the base Miss Exchange and Consolidated Package Store have gone into the Recreation Fund and were used to defray some of the cost.

Beach Scouts return from week-long camp

Boy Scout Troop 435 recently returned from a week of summer camp at Stoen Scout Reservation where the boys worked on various merit badges and earned a total of 72 among themselves.

In addition to the badges they won, the Scouts also made many friends toward several others they were unable to complete.

After arriving at the camp and setting up their sites the boys were tested for their swimming abilities. They were also tested for the use of boats and canoes. The troop attended daily church services.

In competition, Andy Smith finished second in the one-mile swim, while the troop boys won the three-mile swim. Mike Byman, David Elms and Wayne Sheffield. The troop earned the Honor Ribbon, taking first place in the waterfront events.

Awards were presented at a campfire planned and organized by senior patrol leaders from the troops various troops at the camp. During the week, 435 held two crack-barrels and devoured the glazed watermelon which was earlier won by Gary Carpenter and Donald Miller in one of the waterfront events.

Adults attending the camp were Scoutmaster Robert Elms and Dan Hanbury. Several parents assisted by providing transportation for the long trip.

Beachers' net play better

By BLAIR THURMAN
Sun Sports Editor

During a week that was so hot and humid that to sit by a pool and sip a mint julep would almost be too much effort, the Miller and Rhoads Junior Tennis Tournament was held at Princess Anne High School and Bayside High School.

But despite the heat, Virginia Beachers did better than ever, especially in the 14-and-under division, which is the main draw of the tournament.

"This has been the best showing by the Beach kids yet," she said. "In the past they always got knocked off in the first round. In a couple years they will be very strong."

Part of the reason for the rise in local tennis ability, is that the money made in sponsored tournaments goes into developing the younger players.

One of the bright spots for Virginia Beach was transplanted Texan Al How, who stroked his way to the semi-finals before falling to the eventual net to title winner John Maginley of the Bahamas, 6-1, 6-1.

"My ground strokes weren't that swift," commented How after the match, "but he probably would have beat me anyway. He is really good, there's no doubt about that."

And how about the heat? "It didn't bother me as much as much as it did yesterday," he said.

"How also had a hand in the excellent showing of the How-Todd Furniss doubles team that was eliminated in the finals, 6-4, 7-6, (5-1).

Todd's younger brother, Eddie, competed in the 14-and-under division, but lost after "Doing well in the first set, but had them on."

The Virginia Beachers who did well in the tournament were:

14-and-under: Katherine Baylor reached the semi-finals. According to Jeannie McLaughlin, "She did real well out of a draw of 27."

16-and-under: Martha Broeker reached the quarter-finals before falling to the number one seed, who went on to win the tournament.

18-and-under: Betsy Neugier advanced to the semi-finals and lost to the number three seed.

12-and-under doubles: Carter Chaffin and Kim Baylor made the semi-finals. It went three sets with tie-breaker.

14-and-under doubles: Katherine Baylor and Susan Jacobson (of Norfolk) went to the semi-finals and lost to the number one seed.

16-and-under doubles: Julie Snodgrass and Susan Lawless (of Norfolk) lost in the semi-finals. Betsy Neugier and Carol Knob (of Richmond) lost to the number two seed.

Boys:

12-and-under: Harvey Shiflet advanced to the semi-finals.

14-and-under: Randy Harris reached the quarter-finals.

16-and-under: Al How reached the semi-finals.

18-and-under doubles: Al How and Todd Furniss reached the finals.

18-and-under doubles: Fred Benjumes and Jim Hogan advanced to the quarter-finals.

Receive commendation

Bayside's team honored

They knew they were talented. Their fans knew it. And now even the city has recognized them.

At a recent Virginia Beach City Council meeting, a resolution of commendation was passed in recognition of the efforts of the Bayside High School baseball team, which won the State AAA championship.

A bronze plaque was also awarded the team, which will soon grace the halls of Bayside High.

The resolution read: "Whereas Bayside High School has brought the 1975-76 High School Championship of Virginia Beach as a result of earnest practice and good sportsmanship.

"Now therefore in recognition of their efforts, the City Council of the City of Virginia Beach, Va., does hereby direct the city clerk to enter into the minutes of the City Council this resolution of commendation for their accomplishments in demonstrating good sportsmanship and the principles which make America the great Democratic country into which it has developed."

Boating Tips...

Double up for fun

Two families with different boats can find a weekend cruise doubled in pleasure simply because they have combined capability of water skiing, fishing, cruising and exploring. Limitations of one boat are offset by advantages of the other. Time can certainly be put to better use. And safety is also enhanced, say the Mercruiser stern drive people. When it is necessary to cross an open stretch of water, it is comforting to have another boat nearby. A pair of boating families can always pitch in and help one another out to make the boating experience more pleasant.

Worrell receives plaque from mayor

Yo, ho, ho...

He's doing it again.

Well, it's not exactly the 1,000 mile race he staged before, but Mike Worrell is holding another Hobie Cat race, a Virginia Beach to Cape Hatteras, back to Virginia Beach regatta.

This Friday at 5 p.m., Mike Worrell and between 15 and 20 other skippers will above off for what could be dangerous race. Treacherous Diamond Shoals must be crossed twice, and of course the weather is completely unpredictable.

Depending on the sailing conditions, the race could take anywhere from 30 hours to 50 hours.

A special race control center will be set up at Worrell Bros., a night spot on the strip, with detailed charts, marine weather radio, and a telephone manned 24 a day to receive position reports and monitor race activity.

A brass plaque engraved with the winners' names will be permanently displayed at Worrell Bros., and the winning team will receive a personal brass plaque and will automatically qualify for next year's Fort Lauderdale to Virginia Beach Coastwise Race.

Last week, the Virginia Beach City Council honored Mike Worrell and his son, Guerry, Bestson, resolution of commendation, stating in part, "Whereas . . . at 3:00 in the morning, Michael Worrell and Guerry Bestson did their 16-foot catamaran . . . after completing a 1,000 mile seagoing race in the record time of 12 days . . ."

Lisa, 15, is a ninth grader at the school. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. McSwain, 3412 Archer Ct.

The annual award is given by ESA to focus public recognition on the community service and outstanding citizenship exemplified by most of the nation's young people.

THE ROAD LESS TRAVELED

"Two roads diverged in a wood, and I—
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference."

When Robert Frost wrote these words he knew how it felt to follow his own conscience. To follow Jesus Christ is to choose the road less traveled, for his teachings are not always easy to follow. His followers must make choices that are sometimes unpopular. They are often misunderstood, even scorned for their beliefs.

Jesus, himself, could have had the whole world if he had said the things that people wanted to hear. He took the difficult course, however, and said things that even today are not accepted by everyone.

In the end, we will find that being true to Jesus Christ will make all the difference. As Christians we become different people. The Christian road is the one less traveled, but it is the only one worth following.

A typical Victoria Station restaurant

Victoria Station now being built

All aboard for a new dining experience. Victoria Station is coming to Virginia Beach. The California-based restaurant chain will open its first restaurant in Virginia this fall.

Victoria Station, known nationwide for its fine food and unique British railroad decor will be located on the southwest corner of Columbia Loop and Constitution Avenue, on a wooded site leased from EPCO Penbrooke Associates.

The prime rib restaurant chain utilizes authentic British box cars and cabooses to house its restaurants and offers its patrons a nostalgic trip through the history of British railroading while they dine.

The resort city Victoria Station, now under construction, will be a configuration of four authentic box cars and one caboose. The restaurant will be appointed inside with headlamps, brakemen's lanterns, train tickets, schedules and maps will be reproduced as menus and also used to adorn table tops. Bargain carts will serve as salad bars. The bill of fare, of fered in dollars and pounds, will feature prime ribs, steak, and shrimp.

The 7,100 square foot restaurant will seat 220 and employ 34.

The Victoria Station chain, founded in 1969, operates 46 restaurants throughout North America and Hawaii. The Virginia Beach location will be the 47th listed by the chain. Six other Victoria Station restaurants are also under construction in California, Canada, and Georgia.

In 1975, Victoria Station had sales of $6.8 million, up $2.9 million from 1974.

Office Hours By Appointment Telephone (804) 622-7000

A new cancer information service will be available by telephone to all Tidewater residents this month as the Virginia Division of the American Cancer Society and the Medical College of Virginia Cancer Center inaccurate "Health Line."

The service offers pre-recorded educational messages about many aspects of cancer. They will be played over the telephone.

The service is funded by an $80,000 grant from the National Cancer Institute. There is no charge for the service when it is dialed locally. The telephone company will charge long distance rates for non-local calls.

Here is how the service works: Dial 804-770-8181. When the Health Line operator answers, the caller describes the cancer-related topic he would like explained. The operator then plays a tape about three minutes long.

There are currently more than 50 tapes available to the general public. The tapes are periodically reviewed and re-recorded as new information becomes available. A list of tapes is available from local units of the American Cancer Society and from the MCV Cancer Center.

The service is available 8 a.m. - 11 p.m., Monday through Friday, except between 4:45 and 6 p.m., daily. Saturday hours are 1-5 p.m. and the service line is open Sunday 2 - 10 p.m.

In addition to the tapes available to the general public, there is a group of tapes available only by prescription from a physician. They will supplement what a doctor tells a patient about an upcoming diagnostic or treatment procedure.

Miss McNeil named winner

Kathy McNeil, a senior majoring in apparel design at the Rhode Island School of Design, has been named the winner of the Lowell Award for excellence in men's wear.

Ms. McNeil, the daughter of Mrs. Patricia McGlinney, 1435 Taureau Court, Virginia Beach, won the $200 in the annual award given by Lowell, a Providence attorney.

"These tapes are not intended to take the place of what the doctor tells the patient," said Dr. Robert W. Jessee, principal investigator of the grant. "They are to assist the physician in informing his patient about the procedures he will experience. It helps the patient exercise informed consent because it adds to an explanation of risks and benefits involved in whatever surgical, radiological, chemotherapy, or other treatment procedure is proposed," said Dr. Jessee.

A third group of tapes is available only to patients at MCV hospitals. These tapes explain the patient bill of rights, visitor policies, admission and discharge procedures, and hospital personnel.

The messages on all of the tapes were written by members of the MCV faculty and cancer experts in Virginia.

Callers can hear tapes on the causes of cancer, its detection, its treatment, the different sites where cancer occurs, and preventive measures. There are instructive tapes on breast self-examination, skin cancer and oral cancer.

Dr. Jessee said that about one third of all cancers in their early stages are curable. Cancer is the nation's second most prevalent health problem following heart disease. It will affect one-fourth of all Americans during their lifetime.

The Virginia Beach Farmers' Market will officially open July 30 with grand-opening celebrations continuing through August 1, but the market is already open and doing a land-office business.

The beautifully built facilities hold an array of fresh, vegetables, fruits, baked products and other items that make the trip worth it even if you are not buying.

As you wander through you hear the call of salespeople advertising such items as "Fresh corn, white or yellow, fresh picked."

Picked today. 80¢ a dozen, unheard of prices."

The products look good, the people are friendly and the prices are more than reasonable.

To celebrate the opening there will be square dancing every night during the grand opening, the city manager and mayor will be there and for ribbon cutting ceremonies, there will be banjo players and western riders.

If that is not enough already, Jim Hackett who represents the market will invited Democratic Presidential nominee Jimmy Carter to attend on one of the days.

'Tomorrow' sets plan

What's in the cards for Virginia Beach?

The Virginia Beach Council of Civic Organizations received an update on the Virginia Beach Tomorrow program recently at its monthly meeting.

Jim Agius, program chairman, presented to Dr. William Pindur, a teacher at Old Dominion University who is a member of the Steering Committee, to speak on the program, its progress and plans.

Dr. Pindur emphasized that the Virginia Beach Tomorrow offers an opportunity for planning a city rather than letting things happen.

The community leaders selected to serve in the program will be the leaders of the entire program. They outlined the needs of the community which had developed as a result of the social and growth policies which were identified by the Virginia Beach Tomorrow Group.

Those five futures are basically: a tourist based economy, an expansion of the present diversified industry approach, a diversified economic and social development, slow population growth rate and optimum utilization of the land with accent on agriculture and supportive agribusiness, and a high technology future.

Dr. Pindur outlined the need for further study as being the need to develop more specific policies and futures with alternative ways of arriving at those futures, determining the specific positive and negative consequences associated with each alternative, costs and benefits calculated, and a set of consistent policies and objectives finally being achieved.

The projected benefits of the additional cost of $2,500 spent as Dr. Pindur foresees it, would be to improve long range planning, clear goals, and develop a sense of direction with the money allocations being based on direction provided by the study.

It is hoped that the same 72 people will be able to assemble this fall and arrive at some conclusions through the American Assembly Method which was developed at Columbia University by Dwight Eisenhower.

The Virginia Beach Tomorrow Program has identified the twenty-five major continuous critical problems as being: traffic, flooding, water supply, inadequate sewage and drainage, poor regional cooperation, poor street and highway system, etc.

Dr. Pindur explained that the City Council had voted to spend the additional funds for completing the project and that after the initial group of persons had been asked to participate, additional persons from the community would be selected to participate in the program.

After the two-day final session the completed report will be presented to the Virginia Beach Council to be incorporated in the Virginia Beach Comprehensive Plan.

Info calls to cost

Continental Telephone Company of Virginia filed revised tariffs today with the State Corporation Commission announcing its plans to implement directory assistance charging on Saturday, November 6, 1976.

Continental will begin charging ten cents for each call dialed direct to directory assistance after a six-call allowance during a billing period on or after November 8.

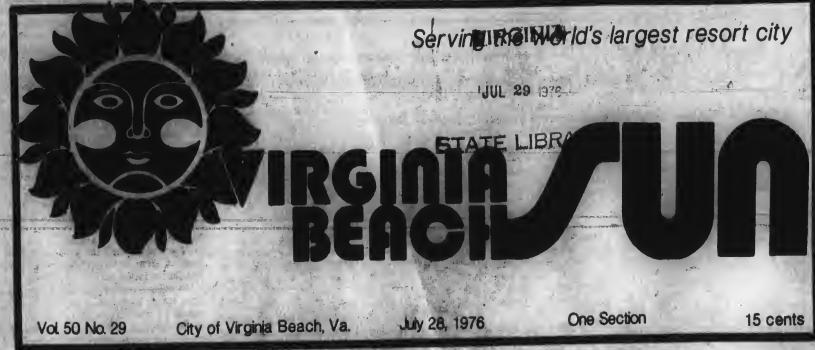

Mr. Allen Roberts, district commercial manager for Continental, said the charge after allowance in a billing period will be applicable to all directory assistance calls within the State of Virginia. However, there will be no charge for calls to directory assistance in another state, except where the local calling area extends into another state jurisdiction.

The Continental manager said that calls from telephones where the customer or a member of the customer household has been affirmed in writing as unable to use a telephone company provided directory will be exempt from directory assistance charging. He also said the charge would not be applicable to hospitals, hotels, motels, and coin telephones.

Following hearings before the Commission, the SCC issued an order in August 1976 permitting the Company to charge ten cents a call after a six-

The iceman goeth...

Everybody likes Michael Flynn.

Seven hundred and fifty Virginia Beach citizens like him well enough to put their names on a petition on his behalf.

Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing said he liked Michael Flynn, and Mayor Clarence A. Holland said that possibly the only other person who might make City Council's decision harder, because of sympathy generated, might be a widow.

The Virginia Beach Council nevertheless Monday afternoon denied Flynn permission to operate his pushcart on the boardwalk until after Labor Day.

Flynn is the Princess Anne High School senior who invested $1,000 in a stainless steel pushcart; permits and supplies at the beginning of the tourist season to dispense soft drinks and Italian ices to thirsty beach-goers.

Flynn has a peddler's permit but was issued by the city's Circuit Court for advertising on public grounds and prohibited under a city ordinance. Judge Richard S. Wahab Jr. found the boardwalk was not "public grounds" and dismissed the suit. He agreed, however, that the city had the right to regulate the boardwalk and to require permits for different types of activities.

Last Monday council amended the peddling ordinance to specifically include boardwalks in the prohibition of the sale of food, drinks or other merchandise.

It was under the new ordinance that Flynn through his attorney, Winston G. Suiter, asked George L. Hanbury's rebound to let him sell on the boardwalk.

Standing said the attitude of the letter writer to the newspaper bothered him. They seemed to think, he said, that this was the first young man who has tried to sell refreshments on the boardwalk.

He has a good business, Standing said, because no one else has been allowed to sell refreshments and he has monopoly. Standing suggested that the city look into a type of franchising with guidelines to meet any need for selling on the boardwalk which exists.

Holland said he was "proud" of a student, who worked hard, and that the only other person who might evoke as much public support and sympathy "might be a widow."

The discussion turned on the generalities of the boardwalk.

Councilman R. L. Riggs stated he believes the boardwalk is outdated by 25 years and that council should consider discontinuing the use of bikes and trains on "one of the smallest boardwalks on the East Coast."

Hanbury suggested that during peak times the bikes pose a greater hazard than the trains and that some consideration should be placed in studying the possibility of setting hours for the use of the boardwalk.

Mayor Curtis L. Payne said that it was too late in the season to make changes now, but that the problem should be considered for next year.

Hanbury noted that $30,000 a year is spent to maintain the boardwalk and replace sections, and that a $25 million federal project is involved in reinforcing the bulkhead.

After Attorney Suiter presented his client's request to continue his operation along with petitions which he said included names of some motel owners, Standing said that he had "real concerns about this type of operation on the boardwalk."

The Council is being made a villain, Standing said, but Mike Flynn is not the first person who has tried to sell on the boardwalk.

"What Mike Flynn is doing is no problem, he said, but council, in permitting his activity should allow others. I like Mike Flynn."

Suiter said he doesn't think the city is going to be besieged with requests in the middle of the tourist season, and he pointed out that the court ruled Flynn was operating legally before the ordinance was passed.

Robert G. Pugh, who operates stores at the 14th Street fishing pier and at 3000 Street where he sells refreshments, said that he tried several times to secure a permit to sell ice cream on the boardwalk.

Buffington, who has been operating business with city licenses for 28 years, said that if the permits were issued to Flynn, he would want one to sell ice cream, hot dogs and drinks.

T. W. Halstead, manager of the Pioneers Beach Club, said that he would apply for six permits. Halstead said he paid $1,500 for one license which is more than Flynn's entire investment....

City takes aim at Welfare cheats

By LEE CAHILL
Sun Political Editor

The City of Virginia Beach is going to crack down on welfare fraud so that the more deserving can receive more help.

City council Monday afternoon approved the addition of an assistant Commonwealth's Attorney to handle welfare fraud and non-support cases under a state pilot project which includes only Virginia Beach and Richmond.

The city also appropriated $300 to meet the gap in the attorney's salary between the amount set by the State Compensation Board -- $17,500 and the $18,480 which is in line with the city's pay scale.

All told, the office is 100 per cent federally funded, the State Board sets the salary. (The state establishes its salary on the average salary of a freshman attorney out of law school, which is $15,000, but agreed to increase the Beach attorney's salary to $17,500.)

Mrs. Frances L. Elrod, Social Services director, said recipients of aid to dependent children get 90 per cent of their needs, which means that the 1,650 served by the department are doing without something -- usually food. She estimated that about 2 per cent of the claims are fraudulent and that if these frauds were uncovered, the City might pay 100 per cent of the to the deserving.

Virginia Beach actually has a low percentage of fraudulent claims. Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans said that with successful cases against frauds, the program should ultimately be self-supporting.

says the city spends about $6 million in relief each year.

Mrs. Elrod admitted that 90 per cent of the applicants for aid have potential income, but by legally removable relatives, and the crack-down might unearth these people.

In reference to the "continuous problem of discrepancy between the Compensation Board's (Attorney salary) allowance and the city's pay scale," Hanbury recommended that city council request legislators to insist that the State pay an equal share of the localities' pay plans. At present, the City pays $42,000 more than the State in support of the Commonwealth's Attorney's office.

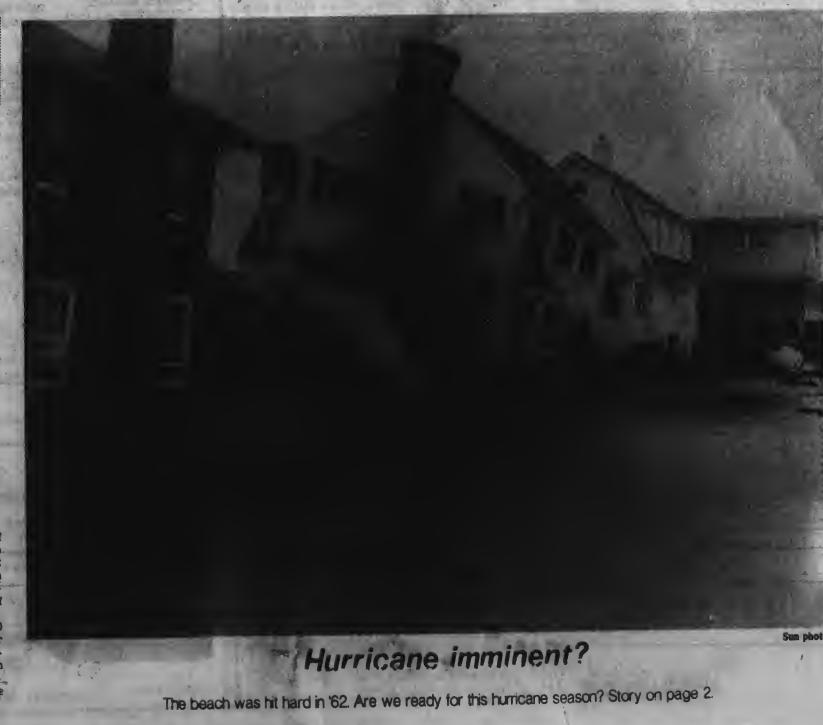

Council also approved an additional lawyer for the Commonwealth's Attorney's office to handle the increased case load and to provide additional support for two judges in Police Court and the additional District Court judge. The salary will be $14,400, half of which will be paid by the state.

In other action, council:

--Approved a ordinance changing the executive session so that the executive session will be voted on at the beginning of meeting. It changes the time of council meetings to 1 p.m. (from 2 p.m.);

--Approved the transfer of $2,360,000 from the General Fund to the Capital Projects Fund, the amount to be replaced when $16 million in bonds are sold. The money is for projects begun before the actual sale of bonds;

--Approved the transfer of $812,000 from the General Fund to the Water and Sewer Fund. The money represents a loan to the Virginia Beach Development Authority for construction of water and sewer and will be repaid with interest.

Hurricane imminent?

Recall our last hurricane? It's been a long time, but...

By STEVE STONE
Sun News Editor

It depends on what you call major as to when you might say Virginia Beach last experienced a severe storm of hurricane force, but whatever that measure, it has been many years. The National Weather Service Office locally says that the last hurricane to really affect the area was in 1960, 16 years ago.

This is the first of a two-part report dealing with hurricanes in the Virginia Beach area and examining the kind of preparations that have been and are being made to meet the potential disaster that comes with a hurricane.

Continuous weather records for this area go back to the 1, 1871 when the National Weather Service (NWS) office in Norfolk was opened. Of course the history of tropical storms goes back much further.

Jeann Chapman of the NWS office has explored historical records in order to chart the history of Tidewater's greatest storms.

Prior to 1871, very early storms have been located in ship logs, newspaper accounts, historical documents and other writings. The residents of colonial Southeast Virginia, especially in this area, were very much aware of the weather that affected them the most.

For a people that lived on the coast and derived their livelihood from the sea, a tropical storm was indeed a noteworthy event. The excellent records left by some of Virginia's early settlers and the records of the Weather Service provide a history that can help one to prepare for the future by learning from the past.

In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries these storms are noted:

1635 August 24 - First major hurricane reference in a major historical reference that could have affected the Virginia coast.

1667 September 5 - It appears likely that this hurricane caused the widening of the Lynnhaven River.

1693 October 29 - From the Royal Society's Society of London. "There happened a most violent storm in Virginia, which stopped the course of ancient canals, and made some where there never were any."

1749 October 19 - Tremendous hurricane. A sand spit of 800 acres was washed up, and with the help of a hurricane in 1806 it became Willoughby Spit.

Historical records list the following tropical storms as causing significant damage in Virginia: 1649; September 1761; October 1761; September 1769; September 1775; October 1783; September 1785; July 1788.

In the nineteenth century records become more accurate with records on a wide spectrum of rainfall. 1808 August 23 - Called the "Great Coastal Hurricane of 1808."

1821 September 3 - One of the most violent hurricanes on record.

1846 September 8 - Hatteras and Oregon Inlets were formed.

1876 September 17 - The average five-minute wind speed at Cape Henry, 75 mph; 8.32 inches of rain.

1878 October 23 - Cobb and Smith Islands, on Eastern Shore, were completely submerged. Average five-minute wind at Cape Henry 84 mph. Eighteen lives lost. Lost when the A.S. DAVIS went ashore near Virginia Beach.

1879 August 18 - Tide in Norfolk 7.67 feet above mean low water. Average five-minute wind speed at Cape Henry 76 mph with gusts estimated at 100 mph.

1887 October 31 - Average five-minute wind speed at Cape Henry 78 mph. The storm caused a record number of marine disasters.

1893 August 23 - Average five-minute wind speed at Cape Henry 88 mph.

1894 September 29 - Five-minute wind speed at Cape Henry 80 mph; 10.2 inches of rain.

1897 October 25 - Lasted 60 hours. Tide in Norfolk 8 feet above mean low water.

1899 October 31 - Average five-minute wind speed at Cape Henry 72 mph. Tide in Norfolk 8.4 feet above mean low water.

Noteworthy storms also occurred June 1825; August 1837; August 1850 and September 1856.

Records became more accurate during the current century. As the reader finds, the 1950's proved to be the worst decade ever. 1953, however, was the year in which the worst storm ever hit Tidewater and Virginia Beach.

1903 October 12 - Average five-minute wind speed at Cape Henry 78 mph; the tide in Norfolk reached nearly 9 feet above mean low water. One death.

1924 August 20 - The average five-minute wind speed reached 72 mph at Cape Henry. One death.

1924 September 30 - Fastest one-minute wind speed in Norfolk 76 mph.

1926 August 22 - Average one-minute wind speed at Cape Henry 74 mph.

1928 September 19 - Average one-minute wind speed at Cape Henry 72 mph.

The tide reached 7.06 feet above mean low water in Norfolk. One death.

1933 August 15 - Hurricane established two records, the highest tide of record 8.59 feet above mean low water, and the lowest pressure ever registered in a tropical storm, 28.48 inches. Eighteen people lost their lives.

The highest one-minute wind speed in Norfolk was 70 mph; 82 mph at Cape Henry, and 88 mph at the Norfolk Naval Station.

1933 September 15 - The highest one-minute wind speed was 88 mph at the Norfolk Naval Station, 75 mph at the Weather Service in downtown Norfolk, and 87 mph at Cape Henry. The tide was 8.15 feet above mean low water.

1936 September 18 - Highest one-minute wind speed was 84 mph at Cape Henry; 68 mph in downtown Norfolk. The tide reached 8.18 feet above mean low water, for the second highest tide of record.

1944 September 14 - Highest one-minute wind speed was 134 mph at Cape Henry, which is the highest est of record in the Hampton Roads area. Gusts were estimated to 150 mph. The Weather Service had 78 mph with gusts to 90.

1953 August 14 - Tides in Norfolk - The highest one-minute wind speed was 73 mph at Cape Henry, 63 mph at the Weather Service with gusts to 150 mph. One death.

1954 October 15 - HAZEL - The highest one-minute wind speed was 88 mph at the Weather Service Office at the Airport, it is the highest of record for that location.

Gusts were estimated at over 100 mph. A reliable instrument in Hampton recorded 130 mph.

1959 September 30 - GRACIE - 6.75 inches of rain in 24 hours.

1960 September 12 - DONNA - Highest one-minute wind speed at the Airport was 73 mph; 80 mph at Cape Henry, and estimated 120 mph at the Chesapeake Light Ship. Three deaths.

1964 September 1 - CLEO - A storm noted for its rain, 11.40 inches in 24 hours, greatest rainfall of record since weather observations January 1, 1871.

1971 August 27 - DORIA - The highest one-minute wind speed was 52 mph at the Norfolk Airport, and 71 mph at the Norfolk Naval Station. A small tornado occurred. (The last tropical storm to affect the area with any strength.)

GINGER in September 1971 and AGNES in June 1972 caused little more than rain on the coast of Virginia.

All told, since the first storms were recorded, over 400 tropical storms have come close enough to southeastern Virginia to affect the weather to some degree.

Two or three times a century winds and tides have produced considerable property damage and significantly shortened lives. Three storms have even altered the actual coastal profile of Tidewater.

The last great storm is said to be the Ash Wednesday storm of 1962. Many homes were damaged and destroyed, sections of the boardwalk washed away and the ocean front experienced a great deal of damage. Since then more and more construction has gone on, even a moderate storm produces some damage to the area.

With the increase in the amount of available land to absorb heavy rains flooding can pose and even threaten danger to the area.

Winds of course, will cause damage, and the stronger the winds the greater that loss of property, tides can threaten severe destruction to coastal areas.

In the concluding portion of this article we will now examine the preparations that are being made by the Red Cross, the city government, Civil Defense and other agencies in preparation for a season that is late in coming this year.

We will explain how the drought in Africa is delaying the production of hurricanes and as a sidelight we will speak with some local women whose names are on the storm list to be used this year. And, of course, we will tell you what you can do to protect your boat, house, mobile home and most important, you and your family.

At NAS Oceana

Navy mess specialists ice the cake

Nowadays, everyone's a specialist, capable of performing one aspect of an overall task. Therefore, anyone might think that the mess specialist who conducts a "mean pot of stew" cannot fashion the delicate icing borders adorning a cake.

Not so! Although each may have a particular specialty, all mess specialists should be diversified in taste, artful food preparation.

So, an initial group of five NAS Oceana mess specialists recently volunteered to attend a local cake decorating class to broaden their knowledge in the limited field of food preparation.

The military course, covering basic through intermediate, consists of eight lessons, two and one-half hours each session. It is designed to teach the decorator to ice a smooth cake and to mix icings to correct consistencies for the various types of decorating. Students learn to make several different icing flowers and they complete four cakes during the course. Rich paper pa-ing and color flow methods are also taught. The final cake is a Bon Voyage cake adapted from the Lambeth style of cake decorating.

The entire eight-day course fee and supplies are paid for through station training funds. This initial group of students from Oceana will be followed by other mess specialists willing to enhance their capabilities in the food service field.

Cake cutting ceremonies marking special events are among Naval traditions. The NAS Oceana Food Services Officer, Lieutenant Junior Grade B. R. Hoopes, now has professionally trained personnel to prepare cakes for command changes, ribbon cutting ceremonies, special events and holidays. Moon cakes are used in ice cream the decorator to produce command insignia in charge of command cakes. Thereafter, the decorator may be as imaginative and creative as desired to finish the artistry in sugar and shortening.

A masterpiece for MS1 Paul Arrington! The finished product makes the hard work worthwhile.

MS2 Gervacio Moreno borders his cake, carefully and precisely guiding the decorating tube with his right hand.

Uninvited chewsy Millions find homes tasty

Each year voraciously chomping insects feast on $500 million worth of property. According to the National Pest Control Association (NPCA), this represents more damage than hurricanes, tornadoes and all of the other types of windstorms combined.

There are four types of termites. Drywood and dampwood termites are found mostly in the southern areas, along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. Formosan termites, the most aggressive type, are a threat mainly in Hawaii, but have also been discovered along the Gulf Coast. Subterranean termites are native to practically every region of the country.

Accounting for about 95% of U.S. termite damage according to the NPRA estimates, subterranean termites are able to enter a house through cracks as tiny as 1/64 of an inch. These pests rarely appear above ground, but can easily wind their way through a house by a series of mud tunnels.

Although a single termite is nearly invisible to the human eye, they sometimes can be detected in swarms. It is important to learn the difference, however, between swarms of termites and flying ants. If you can get close enough to see, you will notice that termites have thick, fat waists while ants' waists are pinched.

It is a mistake, though, to wait for swarms to tell you there are termites.

These greedy creatures can dine on all of Shakespeare's tragedies before being discovered.

For this reason, it is a good idea to have a thorough inspection by a termite control company.

Annual Fund drive nets big money for Wesleyan

More than 1,000 contributors, including Virginia Beach residents, gave $102,687.77 in the Friends of Virginia Wesleyan College's annual fund drive for the fiscal year ending June 30.

The annual fund was sent this week to the 210 workers in the annual program by C.E. Thurston, Jr., 1976 general chairman, and James R. Bergold, vice president for college relations and general chairman Thurston, in the report work area.

The number of contributions increased from 583 last year to 1,004 this year.

The amount received was up from $88,018. The goal for the fiscal year just ending was $100,000.

Funds received in the Friends of Virginia Wesleyan Annual Fund program are used mainly for direct operating support, library books and materials and scholarship aid. Virginia Wesleyan receives no direct tax funds for operating support. The budget for the past fiscal year was just under $2,000,000.

"It is very encouraging to see the large number of people in this area who recognize the vital importance of Virginia Wesleyan College to our community and realize the critical need for continued financial support of our privately sponsored colleges and universities," said general chairman Thurston, in the report work area.

Norfolk led the fund this year with $37,630 followed by Virginia Beach with $13,334. Nearly 90 percent of the contributions in the Friends program were less than $100.

Beach chairman for this year is Harold B. Kallan.

"The response in the Friends of Virginia Wesleyan program was particularly significant this year since many individuals and businesses in the area have committed to the current $3,000,000 Tench Austin Challenge Capital funds program," said Kallan.

College officials report that more than $3,000,000 has been received to date in that building program.

Although a single termite is nearly invisible to the human eye, they sometimes can be detected in swarms. It is important to learn the difference, however, between swarms of termites and flying ants. Members of the Virginia Beach Junior Woman's Club recently held their annual installation luncheon at Orion's Room at the Cavalier Hotel, Virginia Beach.

Mrs. Hunter S. Vermillion, President of the Tidewater District Junior Woman's Club, installed the new officers. They are: President—Mrs. Donald P. Sullivan, First Vice-President—Mrs. William C. Gill, Second Vice-President—Mrs. James C. Hannah, Third Vice-President, Mrs. Robert W. Flanagan, Treasurer—Mrs. W. Bogart Holland, Recording Secretary—Mrs. Matthew O. Incorporated in this program were the club's work on the Crisis Center at Virginia Beach and the responsibility for the organization of the Big Sisters of Tidewater, Inc. in Virginia Beach.

Graduating members of the club presented a delightful skit, and they in turn were cited for their contributions to the work of the club by a skit and a song. Graduating members are Mrs. Lawrence E. Waters, Mrs. R. Leighby, and Mrs. Melvin M. Spence. New club members were introduced and they were the models for a fashion show given by Hang Up.

A total of $5,550.00 was distributed among the Big Sisters of Tidewater, Inc., the Kidney Foundation of Tidewater, Inc., Camp Civitan, the Girls' Club of Virginia Beach, and the Virginia Beach Police Department's Crime Prevention Fund. These funds were raised by club members during the past year through Ways and Means projects.

Opera offered

Beginning next September, a course in the history and literature of opera will be offered at the Virginia Beach Campus of Tidewater Community College. The course will introduce students to opera literature and acquaint them with opera history and performance in every period from the well-springs to contemporary opera.

The course will be taught logically with a lecture and examples from a complete opera devoted to each topic. More than one session will be devoted to Mozart, Verdi and Wagner. Each phase of opera will be examined in terms of past and present criticism of style and performance and analysis through listening along with the study of pertinent librettos. Most of the operas produced locally by the Virginia Opera Association including II Trovatore, Pagliacci and Mozart's Impresario, scheduled for the 1976-77 season, will be in the course repertoire.

Beach women honored

Four Virginia Beach women have been selected four inclusion in the 1976 edition of "Ten Outstanding Young Women of America." The Board of Advisors for the Young Women of America Awards made the selection. The four women are: Rebecca J. McIntyre of Princess Anne Road, Kaye F. Walker of Bethune Drive, Margaret S. Coloma of Old Dominion Lane and Joan G. Ware of Kingsmill Arch.

The Outstanding Young Women of America Program is designed to honor and encourage exceptional young women between the ages of 21 and 36 who have distinguished themselves in their homes, in their professions and in their communities. Accomplishment such as these are the result of dedication, service and leadership qualities which deserve to be recognized and remembered.

This is the goal of the many leading women's organizations, college alumnae associations and public officials who nominate deserving young women to participate in the program. Serving as chairman of the program's Advisory Board is Mrs. Dorothy G. Arnold, honorary president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The women listed below, along with approximately 7,000 fellow Outstanding Young Women of America from across the United States, will be presented in the prestigious annual awards volume. In addition, they are now being considered for one of the fifteen special awards to be presented to those women who have made the most noteworthy contributions in their individual states. From these fifty-one state winners, the Ten Outstanding Young Women of America will be chosen. The national winners will then be honored at the annual awards luncheon to be held in Washington, D.C.

Our Board of Advisors' Editors selected all those honored as Outstanding Young Women of America. We take great pride in bringing their accomplishments to the attention of the American public.

Fett's baseballers sitting pretty

By BLAIR THURMAN
Sun Sports Editor

"We're going to bring the championship to Virginia Beach," says Don Fett, manager of Fett's baseball team in the Tidewater Baseball League.

Currently riding atop their division, and apparently pulling away from the pack, Fett's just might cop the crown. Their strongest competition would seem to be from Burdette's, the other first place team, which to date is undefeated.

Nevertheless, Don Fett is confident. "We've got a real fine team," he said recently, "the guys just don't quit. They've come from behind several times, they've been down, but they always come back."

One of the main reasons for Fett's success is Marty Moore, an ex-Bayside star, who is spending his summer on the pitching mound before returning to the University of Virginia for his sophomore year.

"Marty has definitely been our workhorse," said Fett. "Marty plays Thorobred ball too, although they use him in the outfield quite a bit. He throws every three or four days."

On a team that cuts up a lot, and keeps up a constant chatter, Marty Moore remains quiet, preferring instead to move down opposing batters in silence, with only an occasional quizzical look at a questionable call to show his face in moments of silence.

Fett, on the other hand, likes to rag his adversaries and try to pump up his team. "Come on Marty," he shouts at his ace hurler, "put him in the book, put him away!"

An opposing batter feels the ball weakly down the line. "Way to come around on it, one-two," calling him by his number. "Real good cut."

And to his blue-clad team he hollers, "Bend your backs big blue!"

The team has an abundance of good hitting. Even Moore is hitting at a .444 clip. "He's a good slicker," said Fett, "and he hits the ball hard, no cheapies."

Legend has it in baseball is shortstop "Towny" Townsend, once drafted by the Boston Red Sox, and now slugging away at a .545 pace for Fett's.

The possessor of a shot-gun arm, Townsend is something of a flake. During a recent game, he could be seen putting his batting helmet by placing it on the ground upside-down, getting on his hands and knees, and dipping his head into it. He rose triumphantly, but his teammates were unimpressed.

"Towny has the strongest arm around here," said coach Mike Smith, "and he's a great hitter."

Earl Jordan, who once inked with the Cleveland Indians, patrols the outfield with speed and his will too. Catcher Steve Green plays solid behind the plate and is a real hustler. All in all, a very strong team.

And like Don Fett said, they just might win the championship.
